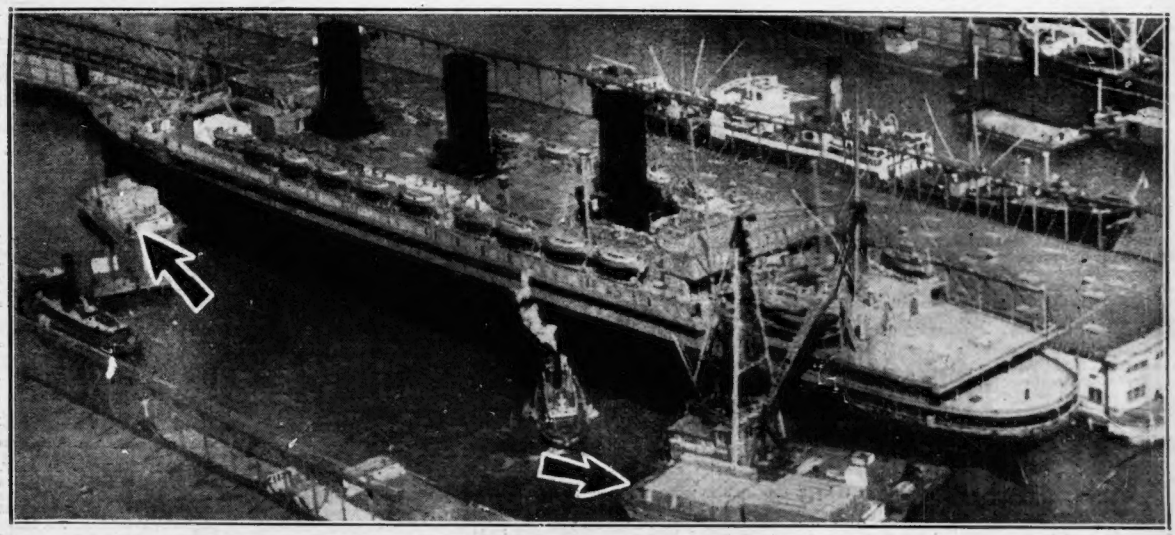
BRITISH SAY NAZIS SEIZE RAIL CENTER

STORY ON PAGE 2



Ready for War Dash—Her hull, superstructure and stacks freshly painted in camouflage black and grey, the French luxury liner Ile de France is loaded at Staten Island pier, New York . . . believed ready to sail for wartime service either today or tomorrow. Several of large crates (arrows) placed aboard the ship were addressed to the French war ministry, giving rise to the rumor that airplane motors were being shipped.

STOREN FALLS IN NAZI SWEEP

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—A military source reported today the Germans had captured the important railway junction of Storen 30 miles south of Trondheim and described the Allied position in the Dombas sector as "difficult."

(In Berlin, the high command announced German forces in Norway have established land connections between their main bases at Oslo, in the south, and the west coast port of Trondheim.) A communique said:

("German troops, advancing north from Oslo by way of Tynset and south from Trondheim, met today on the railroad southwest of Storen. Land connection between Oslo and Trondheim is thereby established.")

Storen's importance cannot be over-estimated, in the opinion of military men here. It is one of four points toward which the Germans presumably have been heading and its capture leaves their advance guard only 30 miles from the strong Trondheim garrison.

DESTROYING BRIDGES

The town is at the junction of the two railway lines running north from Oslo through the Gudbrands and Oster valleys. They run as one line into German-occupied Trondheim.

This British source said that "demolitions are proving effective" and that the most difficult things to repair, such as bridges, are being destroyed.

He said there was "absolutely no truth" in reports that British Indian troops were being used in the Norwegian campaign, but said British officers who had served with the Indian army were included in the northern expeditionary force because of their experience in mountain warfare.

The same course asserted that operations were "going well" at Narvik in northern Norway, and said the situation at Namsos was "stabilized and well in hand."

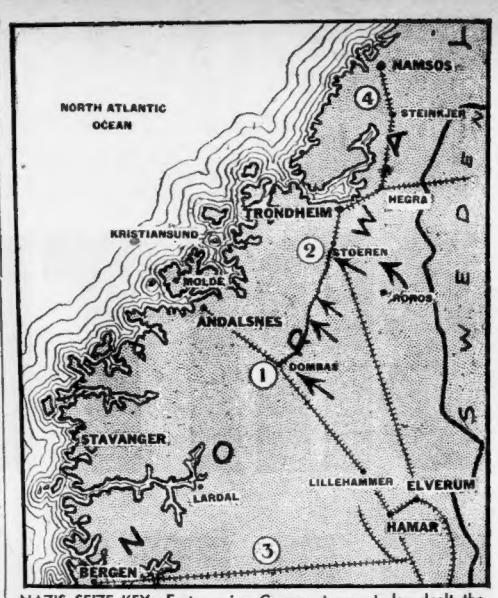
MINE PROPERTY IN FLAMES

On the night of April 28-29, it was said, the British fought "magnificiently" and beat off a German attack southwest of Dombas, destroying several tanks in sharp fighting.

Hjerkinn, about 75 miles south of Storen on the railway to Dombas, was reported still in allied hands. Farther south the Germans were said to have reached Gudavamen on the Sogne fjord.

At Narvik British troops were reported to be "closing in" and the property of an ore company there was said to be burning. The source of these reports did not know the cause of the fire, but said it might have been caused by allied artillery or set by the Germans.

Action on the Steinkjer front was said to have "settled down" and to be confined largely to patrol operations.



NAZIS SEIZE KEY—Fast moving German troops today dealt the Allies a blow in Norway. One column, moving southwest from Trondheim, made contact with one surging north from Oslo and are reported to have met and taken the town of Storen (2), key rail center. Nazi air attacks are alos reported to have caused heavy damage at Namsos (4) and Andalsnes (1), both landing points for Allied troops. Farther south, the Germans claimed gains on their push toward Bergen (3).

BRITISH AND NAZIS IN MAJOR BATTLES

STOCKHOLM, April 30 (AP)—British troops were reported engaged in a major battle today approximately 35 miles south of Dombas in the Gudbrands valley between Otta and Kvam, which fell yesterday to the Nazis.

Fighting also was reported 20 miles north of Dombas, where the Germans were attempting to cut the Dombas-Storen railway at Hjerkinn after pushing westward across mountainous country.

Swedish correspondents said the British and Norwegians were occupying strategically strong positions along the Dombas-Storen railway, reinforced with machine-gun nests and light artillery.

While the main theater of action appeared to be centered south of Trondheim, increasing patrol operations were reported on the Steinkjer front, 50 miles to the north.

ALLIES SCATTER ENEMY

The Stockholm Newspaper Tidningen quoted Norwegian military headquarters as saying British and French troops entrenched along the shores of Lake Snasa, a few miles north of Steinkjer, had scattered German patrols in a flurry of fighting, in which a number of Nazis were killed and some taken prisoner.

The Norwegians described the British Admit 2 Subs Overdue

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—The British admiralty announced today that two submarines, the Sterlet and the Tarpon, were overdue and must be presumed lost.

Two trawlers, the Bradman and the Caie Siretoko, were sunk by bombs. No loss of life was reported.

The 1095-ton Tarpon carried a normal crew of 53 while the Sterlet, 678 tons, had a normal complement of 40.

Hospital Ships Reported Hit

LONDON, April 30 (INS)—Five persons were killed and many injured when German planes bombed two hospital ships off Aalesund, Norway, according to a Reuter's (British) dispatch from "somewhere in Norway" today.

2 FELLED AT FIRE

NEW BRITAIN, Ct., April 30 (INS)—Two firemen were overcome by smoke and 15 persons were driven to the street today when fire swept the old McCabe block on Main st. Damage was estimated at $65,000.

Berlin Claims Allied Defeats Near Trondheim

BERLIN, April 30 (INS)—The Allies have been "defeated and forced into retreat everywhere" in the vital Trondheim-Dombas area of Norway, the German high command announced today.

A military communique also announced surrender of the entire Fourth Norwegian infantry regi-

Light Vote Cast as State Ballots in Presidential Test

One of the lightest votes in years was being cast today in Boston and throughout the State in the presidential primaries, with interest on the Republican side even more desultory than on the Democratic.

In the first hour and a half after the polls opened at 8 a. m. Democratic precincts averaged only eight votes each, while Republican precincts were down for an average as low as three.

Because of the late opening of the polls, however, the bulk of the balloting, throughout the state as well as Boston, was expected to be from noon on.

VOTING VERY LIGHT

So little interest was there in Republican ranks as to what slate of delegates would be chosen for the national convention that six Republican precinct officers even failed to report in various wards.

It was necessary to swear in other officials in their places.

In all, there are approximately 300 precinct officers, evenly divided among Republicans and Democrats, who will earn $26,000 today with apparently slight exertion.

Fifty of these are new officers, and 25 of the 50 are new because of the Hatch law, which forbids, among other things, the employment of supervisors and assistant supervisors on WPA projects as election officers.

Few incidents marred the serenity of the light voting, the outstanding one in the jumpoff being the failure of a ballot box to operate in Precinct 7 of Ward 14, Harvard ave. near Washington st., Dorchester.

Another ballot box was rushed out from City Hall.

When the polls close at 8 p. m. tonight less than 20 per cent of the total 346,107 registered voters in this city will have cast ballots, City Hall officials predicted.

Only 200,000 of the 2,000,000 or more eligible voters in the state will vote, according to State House estimates. Opening and closing times varied generally.

Many observers were watching the election chiefly for the differences that may appear between

Woman Tells of War Under 1-Eyed Leader

By BARBRO ALVING
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ON THE NAMSOS FRONT IN NORWAY, April 30—Norway's tragic role as the battlefield for all of Europe's war was emphasized today with disclosure that Polish and Czech Legions have joined the ever-expanding allied ranks of fighting men.

(Editor's Note—Norway has now become a battleground for almost all the armies of Europe, and a gigantic allied offensive may soon be expected in an effort to halt the German advance, Barbro Alving, woman war correspondent of International News Service, reveals in the following vivid dispatch from the fighting line.)

To participate in the decisive battle that is developing in central Norway, these hard-bitten troops are marching down shell-pocked Norwegian roads and through the ruins of burned Norwegian towns to cross swords at last with soldiers of that power which made them troops and men without a country — Nazi Germany.

They were landed Saturday night at Namsos, these once free Czechs and Poles, and according to the testimony of a British officer at field headquarters, they have swung into the front line of battle with the British, Norwegians and French who are ready now for the longed-for test of strength.

There is every reason to believe the Nazis, generally speaking, have advanced their last kilometer before a huge allied offensive by land, sea and air is to be launched to break the back, if possible, of the German invasion.

SKIS VITAL TO LIFE

The front line north of Steinkjer has now been stabilized. It is a French-Norwegian line rather than a British one. But this is for the sole reason that the English troops are not equipped with the skis

Stabbing Over Unborn Baby

CONFESSING she picked up a knife sharpener and stabbed her husband, Benjamin, with it, Mrs. Shirley Marcantonio, South End expectant mother, was held today, booked on suspicion of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Boston Evening American Photo

2 HELD IN KNIFING OVER UNBORN BABY

An almost hopeless battle was waged by City Hospital surgeons today for the life of Benjamin Marcantonio, 35, found stabbed in the chest, after an altercation with his wife concerning their unborn baby.

Internal hemorrhages were caused when a pick-shaped knife sharpener pierced one of the victim's lungs, an examination revealed, and an emergency blood transfusion was given the man during the night.

Charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, with intent to kill, are his wife, Shirley, 33, and her first husband, Patrick Feeney, who was a guest in the couple's home when the dispute concerning Mrs. Marcantonio's expected child started.

It was Shirley who, in 1938, staged the "Christmas Carol" baby hoax by claiming an abandoned infant as her own.

Today, in municipal court, Shirley and Feeney were held in $2000 each for a hearing May 15 by Judge Frank W. Tomosello, the postponement being made that long to await the outcome of Marcantonio's fight for life.

Officers quoted the woman as saying, between moments of hysteria at police headquarters, that her husband first showed indifference, then became angered, when she told him she would become a mother next month.

"He started to kick me," she cried, "and I fought to save myself—and the baby. I don't know what happened—I became hysterical—I don't know what I did."

Neighbors, hearing sounds of a quarrel, called the police.

HELEN CRLENKOVICH, NATIONAL DIVING CHAMP

GIRL DIVING STAR SPURNS ROSE CASH

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30 (INS)—There will be one bright star missing from his aquagalaxy at the 1940 San Francisco fair, Billy Rose admitted today as he prepared to fly back to New York after selecting the cast for his far western aquacade, which will compete with the original one at the New York fair.

Impressario Rose had hoped to feature Helen Crlenkovich, 18-year-old San Francisco girl who holds a sheaf of national diving records, at the Golden Gate exposition, billed in letters as big as those which advertise Eleanor Holm Jarrett Rose, his photogenic swimmer-wife, in New York

But Helen, after Rose had raved about her in a tryout Sunday night, turned down his offer and decided to remain an amateur.

"I offered her just as much money as I'm paying Marshall Wayne, the Olympic champ," Rose revealed, "but she said she was only an amateur and wanted to continue her study of law and be a woman lawyer instead of a professional swimmer

"I don't feature women divers in my shows, but Helen Crlenkovich is an exception. She was the only great woman diver I had never seen i.. action, and last night she graciously consented to do some exhibition dives at my tryouts in San Francisco.

"I was completely sold on her. The little girl, has, in diving, what my wife, Eleanor, has in swimming. She's the only woman I ever seen who could keep up with the fast company of the great male divers. I hoped to star her in my show. She's the most graceful creature I ever saw dive off the ten-foot board.

"But she'd rather be a lawyer, and that's that."

Helen, who last March won the national high diving and 10-foot board titles at Miami, took part in Rose's tests with several men divers at the Fairmont plunge last night, after Rose, in a blitzkrieg on San Francisco beauty and talent, had picked out scores of girls for his aquafemmes, aquagals, and aquabelles, in an afternoon tryout at the civic auditorium.

Failing the slim girl diver as an attraction, Rose today wired Warner Brothers in Hollywood an offer of $100 000 for the services of Ann Sheridan, the oomph girl, in his aquacade—with the stipulation that she wear the same bathing suit she wore in her latest film, "Torrid Zone."

Newspaper-Making To Be Told on Radio

A striking outline of a modern newspaper in the making is planned for broadcasting throughout New England on Thursday through stations WBZ-WBZA to be aired between 7:30 and 8 o'clock. A tour of the Record-American-Advertiser—with a description of news as it develops—will provide the true-to-life background for the unique radio setting.

This is the first time in radio and newspaper history a complete program of news-gathering and newspaper building has been staged for the radio audience. The feature has been arranged by the National Broadcasting Co., through the WBZ-WBA management and the agement.

ARRANGED BY OFFICIALS

The details have been completed during negotiations between Harold G. Kern, publisher of the Record, American twin tabloids, Walter Howey, executive editor of the newspapers, and Vincent F. Callahan, assistant general manager of the big radio station properties in Boston and Springfield.

Thursday night has been selected and the 7:30 to 8 o'clock half-hour decided upon as most suitable for reaching the widest possible listening attention throughout New England.

Every angle of newspaper-making will be covered, with the entire staff of stations WBZ-WBZA cooperating active with the Record-American organization to provide the public witha moving and vivid radio picture of what happens in a big metropolitan newspaper office while action takes place in all fields of activity such as general news, local news, drama, sports, society, radio and special war bulletins.

BIRTHDAY FEATURE

The special radio presentation is in connection with the second birthday anniversary of the Record-American twin tabloids and is to be in the form of a salute by the radio stations of the National Broadcasting Company—WBZ and WBZA.

Charles J. Gilchrist, news enitor of WBZ-WBZA and special representative of Asst. General Manager Callahan, is completing the last-minute details with Newcomb F. Thompson, radio editor of the Record and American.

So it means the radio audience gets a fast-moving tour of the Record-American-Advertiser building and will work right along with the vast news-gathering organization on Thursday from 7:30 to 8 p. m.

CARNEY DEFENSE CONTINUES

TAUNTON, April 30—Mayor Leo Carney of New Bedford and three townsmen today continued their defense in superior court to charges of conspiracy in the awarding of WPA bus contracts.

At the same time, the government revealed the identity of a witness allegedly threatened with death.

Before the defense opened, Asst. Dist. Atty. Frank E. Smith told the court that an anonymous caller had threatened Arthur Thibeault, New Bedford bus driver, with being "bumped off" if he testified.

Atty. George Helford of New Bedford opened the case of Mitchell Green, one of the defendant bus contractors, with an assertion that he would attempt to prove that Green's only interest in the bus contracts and in the payment for bus hire came about as a result of an assignment made to him by John C. Sylvia, a co-defendant, for whom Green financed the purchase of buses.

Helford said the defense would prove that Green never met Mayor Carney face to face until the day they were arraigned on the conspiracy indictment in November, 1938.

The prosecution rested after City Treasurer Timothy J. Crowley had been recalled to testify concerning the sums the city paid for bus hire in 1938. His testimony showed $4,547.50 was paid to Green between March 22 and July 20 and $2[illegible] to Sylvia between July 23 and Oct. 22.

MOTHER WINS BOY WHO AIDED HER IN COURT

Sixteen-year-old Russell Mason, Dorchester High school athlete, today remained in custody of the mother whom he gallantly defended against charges flung in Suffolk Probate Court by his father, William J. Mason, retired Boston policeman.

Under terms of the divorce granted Mason, Mrs. Mason was given the boy's custody and $8 a week.

Mason won the divorce after he testified that he shadowed his wife for months, finally finding her, he stated, in her room with another man. He made the discovery, he told the court, by climbing up a ladder to her room.

Mrs. Mason denied that she had been anything more than a friend to the man, William D. Daly of Lazell st., Hingham, who was named by her husband. She admitted he might have squeezed her hand and "might have" kissed her, "only three or four times."

Her son, in defense of his mother, testified that although he had seen Daly frequently at the house, there never had been anything wrong. His father, he stated, "almost all the time indulged in liquor."

President's Mother Recovers, 'Feels Fine'

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, 85-year-old mother of the President, rested at her home today, apparently fully recovered from a severe attack of indigestion.

The attack occurred late yesterday as she and a companion, Mrs. Gordon Crawford, were returning from a pre-opening visit to the New York World's Fair.

Ordering her chauffeur to stop when she became ill, Mrs. Roosevelt spent two hours resting in a drug store in Corona, Queens. Druggist John Tangredi said he gave her aromatic spirits of ammonia, after which Mrs. Roosevelt rested at the rear of the store.

"She promised to send me a photograph of herself," Tangredi said.

When she felt better Mrs. Roosevelt returned to her car and was driven home. At her town house, she talked with the President by telephone, assuring him she was "feeling fine." Members of the household said a physician was not required.

The President's mother expressed belief her indisposition resulted from a peach dessert she had for luncheon.

Raffles' Sweetheart Dies With His Secret

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., April 30—Death today held the 13-year-old secret of Anna Blake, sweetheart of Arthur Barry of Worcester, Mass., the "Raffles" who rifled New York and Florida estates of more than $1,000,000 worth of jewels in the middle 1920's.

Anna died of cancer at Meadowbrook Hospital here, still refusing to reveal where Barry, her lover for years, had cached his loot.

She had fallen in love with him before the law stepped in and ever since he went to prison in 1927 had visited him as often as regulations permitted.

Barry, who grew up in Worcester as Arthur Gillison, now is serving a 25-year sentence in Attica state prison. In 1929, he led a successful break from Auburn prison during a revolt of 1700 prisoners.

The will-o'-wisp bane of police for three years, while he carried off such raids as the $83,000 robbery of Jesse L. Livermore's estate at Kings Point and the $240,000 robbery of Carl Schmidlap, wealthy chemical engineer, Barry operated with James "Boston Billy" Monaghan, alias Williams, who was captured at New London, Ct., a month after Barry's arrest.

Barry also was named as a suspect in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case, but was cleared when Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon was unable to identify him as the man to whom he handed the ransom money in a Bronx cemetery.

Anna Blake, who was repeatedly questioned by police regarding her knowledge of the whereabouts of Barry's purported buried treasure, was never tried as an accomplice of her sweetheart.

Prison officials said it was apparently a "true love" match, and that the suave Barry proved his faithfulness to Anna by agreeing to confess in return for a promise that she would remain free.

Inn at Dracut Burns; 6 Saved

DRACUT, April 30—Six persons leaped from windows to save themselves from possible death today as the Dracut Inn, formerly known as the Coq D'Or Club, was burned to the ground.

Flames spread with unusual speed through the rambling wood structure and were visible for miles.

Occupants who fled were Mary Barris, Mr. and Mrs. George Allard, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Knox and Clinton Coffin, former Dracut police chief, who ran to a nearby house to telephone the alarm.

Fire Chief Ernest Gunther, officiating at his last fire because the selectmen last night appointed Guy Richardson as his successor, estimated the damage at $15,000.

Dance on Trylon 700 Feet Up Chills Crowd

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—An unidentified man in white overalls kept a crowd of 200 workmen and police in a state of jitters for more than an hour this morning by capering precariously on a tiny platform near the top of the 700-foot trylon at the World's Fair. He finally was persuaded to seek more substantial footing.

The man appeared at 6:15 a. m. when he opened a trapdoor 20 feet below the tip of the towering pyramid. Emerging into the bright morning sunshine he began to dance.

An alarm brought workmen from all over the fair grounds and police emergency squads from as far away as Manhattan. Police headquarters had received a report the man was "preparing to jump."

Apparently, however, he had other ideas. Fifteen minutes after he appeared he tossed down a coil of rope.

A quarter of an hour later those below gasped as a small white-clad figure detached itself from the platform and came hurtling down.

But suddenly a parachute opened and the figure drifted gracefully into the pool of water below.

It was a dummy!

Then the man above threw down a canvis sack. Next followed a collapsible handbag.

The police meanwhile had sent a hook and ladder squad from Queens. Ladders were raised, but they were far too short.

Then two special policemen started up the stairs inside the Trylon.

Twenty minutes later the white-clad figure was yanked back inside the tower. The crowd dispersed.

The man said he is Roy Yost, who seeks a parachute job. He was booked for disorderly conduct.

In Flushing court, Magistrate Thomas Aurelio fined the man $25 with the alternative of five days in jail, chiefly as an example to others that "they can't try these stunts and expect to get a medal."

The prisoner said he had no money.

How Much to Serve A Friend? Flint Mum

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 30—Although he charged his services were valued at $1,000,000 by the late Col. Samuel M. Nicholson, Dutee W. Flint never stopped to put any definite financial value on them himself.

Such was his testimony as he returned to the stand under cross-examination for the sixth day in his $1,000,000 suit against the Nicholson estate for "valuable service rendered."

Revelation that Flint never had any idea as to the money value of his service to the Colonel came under questioning by William H. Edward, attorney for the estate.

Atty. Edwards asked:

"Mr. Flint, on Oct. 15, 1937, when this million-dollar note was given to you, how much did you consider your services to have been worth to Col. Nicholson?"

The witness hesitated several moments before replying.

"I never gave any consideration to how much my services were worth."

the respective total votes garnered by the Democratic and Republican parties.

LIQUOR PROHIBITED

The sale of liquor was prohibited in Boston and Everett until the polls close, but other cities and towns in the state permitted its sale during voting hours.

Highlights of the political feuds were the fight of State Chairman William H. Burke, Jr., to retain his seat on the state committee and the Republican controversy centering about last minute charges flung by former Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, a Dewey supporter.

Both Eugene M. McSweeney, head of the state police, and Boston's Police Commr. Joseph F. Timilty denied Burke's request for extra police to guard the polls in the 10th congressional district.

ADEQUATE POLICING

Burke said he wanted to guard against "usual tactics," but Timilty said while no additional police would be assigned, there would be adequate policing.

Burke was opposed in his own Franklin-Hampshire district by Carroll J. Lawlor of Greenfield, who was challenging the Burke slate of Farley delegates.

On the Republican side, Gov. Saltonstall, who heads the slate of candidates for delegates-at-large to the Republican national convention, publicly denied charges by Fuller that a G. O. P. machine group was conspiring to send uninstructed delegates to control the convention.

Voters of both major parties were called upon to choose delegates-at-large and alternate delegates-at-large, district delegates and alternates from the 15 congressional districts, state committee men and women from 40 senatorial districts, and ward and town committees.

BITTER STAGE

The contest in the 5th Congressional District reached the bitter stage when three Republican leaders repudiated endorsements said to have been given by them to Robert J. W. Stone of Melrose, candidate for delegate.

The three who denied having authorized the use of their names are Harlan E. Tuttle of Acton, Mrs. Irving H. Chadwick of Lowell and John H. Page of Winchester.

Both Chairman Burke of the Democrats and Chairman Edward D. Sirois of the G. O. P., in last minute appeals, urged the voters of their parties to go to the polls today.

Cutter Reaches Ship Crippled Off Virginia

NORFOLK, Va., April 30 (AP)—Coast Guard headquarters said the cutter Sebago reported today she was standing by the Greek steamer Thalia, crippled by heavy seas and a 60-mile gale, about 350 miles off the Virginia Capes.

The Thalia reported her No. 1 and 2 holds were filled with water and added she was in "bad shape."

Fin. Com. Balks Early Action on El Deficit

With the Boston Finance Commission claiming to need two months more to complete its investigation of Boston Elevated finances the legality of the current $2,724,769 deficit and the propriety of the Governor's council to order payment were shrouded in doubt today.

As forecast exclusively in the Boston Evening American yesterday the finance commission gave little or no information to the council in regard to the El deficit at this time.

In a communication sent to Governor Saltonstall the commission stated:

"The investigation is only partly completed, and the finance commission is unwilling to express an opinion as to the propriety of payment of the Elevated deficit now before your honorable body."

CITY COUNCIL OPPOSED

Before the communication from the finance commission several members of the Governor's Council had said privately they would vote for payment of the "El" deficit in the event the commission didn't reply.

But they are now faced with a resolution by the Boston City Council, adopted 21 to 1 at yesterday's meeting, not to approve the warrant when it is submitted at the regular meeting tomorrow.

Former Lieut.-Gov. Francis E. Kelly, leading a fight to aid taxpayers of 14 cities and towns by lightening the burden of the Elevated deficit, issued a last-minute warning to Governor Saltonstall not to "railroad" the deficit warrant through tomorrow's meeting.

ATTACKS GOVERNOR

Kelly, who has previously charged that the notes to raise the money for payment of the deficit have already been sold, bitterly attacked the Governor on the ground that the notes were sold to two banks in which the Governor is interested.

Protests by Kelly were in large part responsible for the action of the council in deferring approval of the payment at its meeting last Wednesday pending an expression of the attitude of the Finance Commission.

Kelly now contends that payment should be withheld until the state auditor has made an audit of the Elevated's books and the results of the Finance Commission's investigation are made known.

Practically the entire membership of the City Council has joined the former lieutenant-governor in his stand against payment of the deficit, which accounts for about $1.35 of the Boston tax rate.

Lacking Court Funds, Gets Proxy Divorce

Mrs. Evangeline Bond, formerly of Newton, now attending Washington State College, today held a divorce by proxy, granted in Middlesex Probate Court.

The student wife, who was unable to appear in court because of lack of funds, stated in a deposition that her husband, Paul Bond, had been habitually intoxicated and had not supported her.

FILMS BID FOR JOHN, BUT NOT WITH ELAINE

NEW YORK, April 30—Hollywood wants John Barrymore and his show, "My Dear Children," and only one hitch is halting his signature to a $200,000 contract.

Filmland doesn't want his fair Elaine—not at any price. In fact, it doesn't even want John and his famous profile if Elaine goes with it.

This was the score today after conferences between the principals, the authors, producers of the stage show and two Hollywood companies.

Twentieth Century-Fox hopes to get John for its "Great Profile," now about ready to go into production. Selznick International has made an offer for "My Dear Children" and John's own classical features.

The hitch comes however in that Elaine has demanded that she be starred along with John in the Selznick production. Her insistence resulted in withdrawal of a $200,000 offer.

"We asked Elaine to leave the show," said Catherine Turney, one of its co-authors, today. "Business had been falling off. She'd been getting a lot of hate mail. But she said nix—and it's a crazy situation, anyway, you know—anything to keep John happy.

"As the situation stands now, it would help the show if Elaine left, the show continued, and John and the script were sold to Selznick. But John wants to take the 'Great Profile' part, too, which razzes the dickens out of him, 'My Dear Children' and Elaine. And he can't unless the producers let him break his contract which runs until Dec. 31.

"Furthermore, out of justice to Elaine, if it weren't for her, remember, John wouldn't be in the show and there wouldn't be a show."

Said Elaine: "I don't know anything about it. I haven't been asked to leave the show; that's all I know."

'Don't Vote for Me,' Is Donnelly's Plea

LAWRENCE, April 30—"Don't vote for me—please." That was the plea of James P. Donelly, candidate for Democratic ward committeeman, to voters in Massachusetts primary today.

Donnelly, a former state representative, explained that since he filed he found the press of other duties would not permit him to run. His decision to withdraw came too late for his name to be removed.

SHATTUCK BARED AS DONOR

City Councillor Henry L. Shattuck of the Back Bay, former treasurer of Harvard and now senior member of the Harvard Corporation, was revealed today as the mystery donor of $51,410 to Harvard for the extended study of Irish culture, history and language.

Announcement was made by Charles S. O'Connor, president of the Irish Charitable Society, at a dinner of the society at the Copley-Plaza. In revealing the identity of the donor, O'Connor said:

"He is a Harvard man who has given this fund to Harvard because he has the glory of the Irish race in his blood. I have had a long struggle to force him to reveal himself. The donation was made in March.

"The gift was made by Henry L. Shattuck, who is proud of the Irish blood in his veins."

Shattuck, a member of the society, was virtually in command at Harvard during the recent trip of President Conant to California.

Woman Amid Shot, Shell Tells of War

essential for operations in the heavy snow.

Lacking this equipment, a British battalion was torn to pieces last week.

The war around Lake Snaasa and Steinkjer is a ski-war. In this mountainous terrain every experienced Norwegian soldier and every French Alpine Chasseur is "another Finn"—a transplanted counterpart of the incredibly courageous fighters across the Baltic who so long held the Russian bear at bay.

During a visit to the foremost lines at Tangen, where only 500 yards separate the Allies from the Germans, I saw huge blonde Norwegian giants in their camouflaged machine-gun nests and met their chief commander, Col. Ole Getz.

On the western side of the lake, known in Norway as Snaasa sea, the Norwegians have entrenched themselves in strong positions at Stod and Tangen along the railway connecting Steinkjer and Grong, defending these posts against attack for the last five days.

The French are equally obstinately holding the line on the other side of the lake toward Namdalseid.

ONE-EYED BRITISH CHIEF

The flank extending to the wild mountains along the Swedish border is held in a hermetically sealed pocket by Norwegian ski patrols.

Health and morale on the allied side are of the highest. The chief reason for this lies in the personality and ability of Maj.-Gen. Adrian Carton de Wiart, the Belgian-born, one-eyed, one-armed British commander, already known as the "Mannerheim of the Namsos front."

A proud English soldier, engaged in distribution of anti-aircraft guns at different points along the front, told of this incident when his party arrived near De Wiart's headquarters. They started to dig an emplacement for one of the guns when De Wiart, his ever-present cane crooked over his armless sleeve, came stamping out:

"Take that gun out of here," he barked. "Hosts of enemies have shot at me before without putting me in a coffin. They can fire away this time too."

The moral effect of such an example is clear, and it was eloquently expressed by a British sapper who used to be a mechanic in Manchester. He said:

"Our general never was on the losing side, and he's certainly not going to be on it now."

FEWER AIR RAIDS

Another and perhaps more solid reason for the calm and confident spirit is that German air activity has decreased to such a great extent because of the presence now of allied planes and anti-aircraft guns.

Exaggerated are German claims of success in dropping troops by parachute. Every attempt of this sort has failed because of the marksmanship of Norwegian patrols scattered all over the Namsos territories. Efforts by the Germans to land planes on fields in this area have been balked in the most primitive fashion—obstacles of every conceivable sort simply have been strewn about every place where a landing might be attempted.

GERMAN COAL FOR ITALY—In accordance with agreement between Britain and Italy, German coal is shipped by rail to Italy . . . and here many tons of the precious fuel roll over Brenner Pass onto Italian soil. In exchange, Germany receives raw materials needed to feed her huge war machine.

CHAMBERLAIN KEEPS NEW WAR AIM SECRET

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told Commons today, "I do not think it would be in the public interest" to make any statement as to measures adopted by Britain in Norway.

He reiterated that the Allies have "no vindictive designs against the German people."

This was his answer when he was asked if he would take steps to avoid complete identification between Germans and the Nazi government in all statements of British government policy.

UP TO GERMAN PEOPLE

"The German people," he said, "must realize their responsibilities for prolonging the war an dthe suffering that it would bring to them."

The prime minister asserted that was the attitude of the British government and declined amplification when a questioner asked if word had gone forth that government spokesmen should endeavor to impress the British people with "the fact that the German people are as vile as their Nazi leaders."

SEEKS AIR BLOCKADE

War Secretary Oliver Stanley told a questioner a small group of correspondents was ready to go to Norway on short notice and that facilities for publicity on the Scandinavian campaign would be given as soon as circumstances permitted.

Ronald H. Cross, minister directing the British blockade, told the House efforts were being made to check air traffic linking Portugal and Spain with Germany.

The economic warfare ministry, Cross said, is doing its utmost in the face of difficulties arising from the fact that aircraft connecting with transatlantic air lines do not land in allied territory.

Another questioner, who wanted to know whether United States citizens who enlisted in Britain's armed services could retain their American citizenship, was told by Stanley:

"No alien who enlists in the British army is required by us to forfeit his nationality."

F. D. SEEN READY TO QUIT RACE

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 30 (INS)—There was increasing evidence today that President Roosevelt ultimately will dec'are himself out of the 1940 race.

The signs were seen as a White House-approved move was made to restore harmony in Texas between third term advocates and the forces of Vice-President Garner.

DESIRES TO QUIT JOB

President Roosevelt's statement of position one way or the other is not expected until after the Republicans have nominated their candidates at Philadelphia in late June, but when it does come his lieutenants believe it will be couched in such positive terms that there will be no question as to the meaning.

Intimates of the President are convinced he wants to quit at the end of his second term. They believe that after eight gruelling years in the White House he wants to get out and enjoy himself.

WAR MAY CHANGE PLANS

One member of the White House "inner circle" made only one qualification in following this line of reasoning—"that events in Europe might be piling up so fast as to make him do something he doesn't want to do."

Meanwhile, for the obvious purpose of dominating the Democratic convention in Chicago next July, whether a candidate or not, President Roosevelt is letting the third term backers roll up an imposing array of delegates.

He is insistent that his party nominate "a liberal pair of candidates on a liberal, forward-looking platform."

Thursday Nazis' Spinach Day

BERLIN, April 30 (AP)—For the first time in Berlin's history grocery stores will open on Ascension Day, Thursday, to sell spinach and only spinach.

An official notice published today said several carloads of spinach were due from abroad.

Grocers were ordered to go to the Central Municipal Market at 6 a. m. Thursday, a legal holiday, and sell their allotments to the retail trade. The stores may keep open for no other purpose.

British-Soviet Trade Talk Hits Nazi Snag

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Sources close to the Foreign Office asserted today that the Soviet Russian reply to recent British offers to negotiate a trade agreement were "not considered satisfactory" because Russia "regards exports of goods to Germany as her own affair."

The Soviet ambassador to London, Ivan Maisky, was reported to have told Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax last night Russia was willing to discuss a trade agreement on certain conditions.

The question of exports to Germany also was reported to be confronting Britain in efforts to reach a trade bargain with Italy.

Maisky was said to have told Halifax his country would be willing to consider a trade agreement which would bar re-export of British goods to Germany.

However, Maisky was said to have presented his government's insistence on unrestricted exports to Germany of purely Russian goods whether or not the British consider them contraband.

Maisky was reported to have told Halifax that Russia's view is that export of her own goods is entirely her own business. Diplomatic quarters said Maisky's views would be considered by the foreign office and a reply sent to Moscow.

The British air ministry today added to the story of continuing struggle for supremacy in Norwegian skies with an announcement that the German air base at Fornebu, near Oslo, was "successfully" attacked last night by the Royal Air Force.

No details of the attack were given.

The reticence of British officialdom to discuss land operations in Norway was underlined by reports that labor opposition leaders had passed word along to party members to withhold any further demands for an immediate statement by Prime Minister Chamberlain on the war situation in the House of Commons this afternoon.

The necessity for caution regarding public statements on the delicate strategic situation in Norway was understood to have been impressed upon Laborite leaders Clement R. Attlee and Arthur Greenwood when Chamberlain gave them a confidential account yesterday.

Parliamentary circles said the Laborites also agreed that a secret session of Parliament to hear a government war report would be unwise at this juncture.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Late War Bulletins

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Two German planes were damaged in battles with British aircraft off the Norwegian coast within the last 24 hours an authoritative British source said today.

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia, April 30 (AP)—Police discovered a secret store of firearms in a German operated cardboard factory here today. Police arrested the factory manager and seized the equipment, including rifles, pistols, ammunition and uniforms.

BUCHAREST, April 30 (AP)—The allied campaign to cripple Germany's Danube trade was advanced a step further today when 27 French-owned barges and tugs left the river en route to Istanbul. More than 300 barges and tugs leased or purchased by allied agents during the winter to keep them out of the Nazi service were reported sent to Istanbul in recent weeks.

LONDON, April 30 (INS) — German planes bombed the Norwegian port of Namsos seven times in 14 hours yesterday, according to a Reuter's dispatch today quoting the Stockholm Aftonbladet correspondent. Namsos has been used by the British for troop landings.

ment numbering 2500 officers and men, including the commander.

They laid down their arms far behind the front line in the mountains northwest of Lillhammer, the Nazi military statement claimed.

"The Germans are advancing along roads leading to Dombas and Trondheim," the communique said. "They have defeated the enemy and forced him to retreat everywhere yesterday.

"German troops are pursuing the enemy from Otta in the direction of Dombas.

"There are German movements and fighting in the direction of Bergen, which also is rapidly progressing. The Germans are pursuing the enemy from Voss eastward and have captured 260 men and five field guns in that sector."

The sinking of six allied ships and the severe damaging of several others was reported in the portion of the communique dealing with the successes of the German air force. One British plane was shot down.

On the seas it was claimed German submarine chasers destroyed two or three allied submarines in the Kattegat and Skagerrak last Sunday.

BRITISH AND NAZIS IN MAJOR BATTLES

newly consolidated allied positions as extremely favorable in this sector. Railway tracks along the south side of the lake have been ripped up to prevent the Germans from using this approach to Snasa, at the northern end of the lake.

Correspondents who talked to Norwegian officers said that their total losses here in the past few days have amounted to about 30 men, while the British losses have been "perhaps heavier."

Some Norwegian sources said that at least 200 Germans had been killed in a single day on the Steinkjer front.

The Norwegians said the allied position in this area had been greatly strengthened recently by the arrival of British fighting planes, which lessened the pressure the Germans have been exerting from the air.

SLIP BY NAZI BLOCKADE

The Tidningen correspondent quoted one British staff officer as saying the Allies were hopeful that they might be able to break through at Steinkjer and drive the Germans out of Trondheim in the next three weeks, but he cautioned against undue optimism.

The same correspondent asserted that the Germans had been making use of submarines to bring reinforcements through the British fleet guarding the approaches to Trondheim.

He declared that British air raids had done considerable damage to the airport at Varnes, near Trondheim, and that the Germans had put about 2000 of the male population to work making repairs. Those who volunteered were paid for their services, while those who refused were impressed, the correspondent said.

The town of Levanger, half way between Trondheim and Steinkjer, which was the scene of heavy fighting 10 days ago before the British fell back to their present positions, was described as a dead town, virtually deserted by its inhabitants.

Former U. S. Liner Feared Mined, Sunk

NEW YORK, April 30 (INS) — Fears that the former United States liner President Harding, now the Ville de Bruges under Belgian registry, has been mined and sunk were expressed today following a broadcast from Berlin picked up by the National Broadcasting Company in New York.

The Berlin announcer broadcast a Brussels dispatch stating the vessel has not been heard from for two days. The 15,867-ton passenger liner was one of several United States Line ships sold to Belgium after American neutrality legislation prohibited ships of United States registry to sail to the war zone.

NAZIS FLY U. S. FLAG, IS CHARGE

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—Undersecretary of State Welles and his associates pressed an investigation today into the first official charge of misuse of the American flag in the European war.

They were striving to assemble full information on the statement Sunday of C. J. Hambro, president of the Norwegian Parliament, that a Norwegian pilot had sworn the German supply ship, Jan Wellem, which he piloted into Narvik, Norway, flew an American flag and had American flags painted on her sides to disguise her true nationality.

A neutrality act provision would become operative if the asertion of the Norwegian leader should be proved true, but officials were still at a loss as to how it could be applied.

The act makes it unlawful "for any vessel belonging to or operating under the jurisdiction of any foreign state to use the flag of the United States thereon, or to make use of any distinctive signs or markings, indicating that the same is an American vessel."

That is explicit enough for officials. But the punishment provided by the neutrality act is not easy. It says:

"Any vessel violating the provisions of this section shall be denied for a period of three months the right to enter the ports or territorial waters of the United States except in cases of force majeure (emergency)."

But under this provision, the Jan Wellem, or any other belligerent ship, presumably might fly the American flag indefinitely if it kept out of American waters.

The only recourse would be a diplomatic protest against the misuse of the American flag, if misuse is proved.

Such was the procedure followed in the World War when the State Department heard reports that the Lusitania flew the American flag nearing British waters, where she was sent to the bottom by a U-Boat.

The department also took exception to a British foreign office statement "defending the use of the flag of a neutral country by a belligerent vessel in order to escape capture or attack by an enemy."

By DAVID I. WALSH
(U. S. SENATOR FROM MASSACHUSETTS; CHAIRMAN OF THE SENATE COMMITTEE ON NAVAL AFFAIRS)
(Written Expressly for the Boston Evening American)

WASHINGTON, April 30—Evidence presented to the Senate Committee on naval affairs shows that up to the present time all our military secrets have been protected by the joint Army-Navy Board of Control of releases of American-made planes for foreign purchase. The evidence also was that planes purchased by foreign countries have been of current types.

Inspectors are maintained in plants of all American manufacturers, who have contracts with our government, for the purpose of preventing military secrets from being disclosed or divulged to foreign countries, and to insist upon the specifications in our government contracts being filled.

Only two changes have been made in the policy of this board since the European war began. Formerly no releases would be granted for delivery to foreign countries of American-made planes until the Army and Navy had used this type of plane for a period of six months.

A modification took place on March 25 of this year. That modification permits each contract for planes manufactured for foreign countries to be treated individually so that planes can be released at any time without the six months' delay.

Stipulation in all contracts provide that no foreign orders should interfere with the delivery schedules of Army and Navy airplanes and also that no military secrets are to be divulged.

SCHEDULE DELIVERIES

The United States Army has 3803 airplanes on contract and the U. S. Navy has 952 airplanes on contract. Most of the Army airplanes contracts were made in April, 1939.

As it takes about one to one and a half years to build planes (training planes can be delivered in six months), the Army is now beginning to receive some of its planes of the combat type contracted for the last year, and they are being delivered on schedule.

Penalty clauses in the contracts provide for refund for every day's delay

At the present time the Army has on hand 2700 airplanes. On December 31, 1938 it had 1690 planes. All foreign nations have on order about 4000 planes and of this number England and France have about 3173 of which 580 have already been delivered.

GET NEWEST TYPES

General Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps, testified the only delay in delivery of airplanes to the Army was for the purpose of having the planes equipped with the latest improvements. This delay has enabled deliveries of the older types of planes to be made to Great Britain and France.

In no case has there been, or will there likely be, delay of American made planes beyond five to seven months. This delay will enable us to procure the latest and best types of planes instead of acquiring planes not equipped with devices found necessary as a result of the European war.

In 1938 our airplane industry occupied 6,000,000 square feet of floor space and today 7,800,000 square feet. In 1923 it had 23,000 employes and today 55,700. Increase in engine plant employment increased from 5400 to 16,500 today.

This, it is asserted, will be a distinct advantage by having domestic plants with increased productive capacity available for future airplane construction and a larger number of trained mechanics.

Conductor Dies In NBC Studio

CHICAGO, April 30 (INS)—Conductor Josef A. Pasternack, 59, died of a heart attack in a rehearsal studio of the National Broadcasting Company.

Pasternack was stricken just as he started the rehearsal for a program which he was to conduct on a nation-wide hookup.

Window Plunge Called Suicide

WEST SPRINGFIELD, April 30—A verdict of suicide was given by Medical Examiner Charles J. Downey today in the death of James E. Garrett, 57, prominent in political circles, who plunged from a window of his second floor Park ave. apartment.

Downey said he was told the victim had been depressed and unable to sleep for some time.

His wife, Mary, curious about his absence, went to his bedroom, the window of which was wide open. Looking out she saw his crumpled form lying in the cement driveway and called police. He died three hours after admittance to the Springfield Hospital.

Miller-Collette Show Tops at Globe

Seductive Marian Miller is winning the plaudits of the burlesque fans this week at the Globe Theater with her startling "Tango-Mango" dance, with Joan Collette a close second for honors in her Oriental maneuvers. In the same show, which lasts through Thursday, the radio amateurs contest is scheduled for the final performance.

Marjorie Roye, Cora Canning and the dancing Bernadolls, with comics, Benny Moore, Hank Henry, Bob Alda and many others are also part of the fun.

Rooney, McCauley In Howard Triumph

Pat Rooney, the fast-stepping "youngster" who had audiences all whistling a quarter century ago, and retains his charm and his waistline, tops even beauty at the Old Howard this week.

Pulchritude galore supports the famous oldster, with Jerri McCauley and Reggie White, "Queen of the Tassels," prominent on the bill.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, April 30—James Roosevelt, I'm reliably informed, has got himself a pot of gold backing to film "Pot of Gold," the sensational radio feature which will get under way no later than August 1.

Talked with young Mr. R. on the telephone today and he tells me that the script is excellent. He will use the many human interest incidents that occurred on the radio of the many people who had sudden fortunes dropped in their laps and tell what they did with the money.

Jules Stein, who negotiated the deal for Roosevelt, is bringing Horace Heidt and his orchestra to Hollywood for the picture which should get Jimmy off to a flying start as a producer. His second picture will be "Martin Eden," the Jack London opus.

Mary Astor yesterday celebrated her 20th anniversary as a movie actress. She is playing a part in "Brigham Young" now and I couldn't help but recall when Mary first came into the movies. She will tell you that I gave her her name.

I was called into the Jesse Lasky office of the old Famous Players studio and there was this lovely youngster who was introduced to me as Lucille Langhanke.

"What do you think of her?" Jesse asked me.

"I think she is wonderful—all but her name."

"Well, how about Pauline Parsons?"

"Too long for the marquee," I said. "How about Mary Astor?"

And so she was christened Mary Astor then and there.

Miss Day Scores In Monologue

A feeling for characterization and an amazing versatility were the chief offerings of Dorothy Day last night at the Peabody Playhouse. The piece was "Paolo and Francesca," a dramatic monologue by Stephen Phillips with accompanying music written and played by Berenice Wyer.

The story of a man's love for his brother's wife and the ultimate tragedy of such a hopeless and often dramatized situation, "Paolo and Francesca" held more for the student of the monologue than for the average play-goer. Dorothy Day was eloquent, even profoundly moving at times but enacted by a single person, the eight-part play proved a little unconvincing, for those who desire a modicum of realism on the stage.

Although Miss Day's preferences probably do not lie in that direction, one cannot help but think how less it would tax her resources and how much more it would set off her charm and undoubted versatility if she gave at least a part of her talent to the legitimate theater. In the absence of such generosity, her present offering gives her ample room to dominate the stage, the hall, the thirteenth century world of Paolo for a passing moment.

MASSEY BRINGS HIS MEMORABLE LINCOLN ROLE TO SCREEN

Opens Thursday At Keith's

The emancipation of a great man who was later responsible for the emancipation of the United States provides the stirring basis of the picture based on the Robert E. Sherwood Pulitzer prize play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois."

With Raymond Massey in the memorable role he created on the stage, RKO Radio brings the screen version to Keith Memorial screen, starting Thursday.

Other features of the special four-unit screen program will be "Free, Blonde and 21," Twentieth Century-Fox drama with Lynn Bari, Mary Beth Hughes, Joan Davis and Henry Wilcoxon; Walt Disney's new Donald Duck color cartoon, "Officer Duck," and the latest "Information Please," with the former world's heavyweight boxing champion, Gene Tunney, as guest star.

The Lincoln drama encompasses the years from 1830 to 1861, depicting in vivid detail Lincoln's early life as a gangling young frontiersman: moody, melancholy, lonely — a man who avoided responsibility, who was haunted by people. His background and the psychological wellsprings of these formative years in Lincoln's life explain clearly the motives behind his sometimes erratic actions years later as a lawyer and reluctant politician.

It also explains why, when faced with a convenient marriage to an ambitious woman whom he knows will give him the impetus to fulfill his apparent destiny, he runs away, fearing the dreaded responsibility. His aimless wanderings eventually make him realize the trouble and misery of a sick nation, and he undergoes a startling metamorphosis from indecision to determination.

World Premiere

"Keep Off The Grass," the new musical with Jimmy Durante, Ray Bolger, Jane Froman and Ilka Chase, is to have its world premier tonight at the Shubert Theater.

Jimmy McHugh and Al Dubin wrote the score, John McManus is supervising the musical direction, George Balanchine directing the dances. Harry Kaufman is directing the show and the dialogue of the show is in charge of Edward Duryea Dowling. John Shubert is in charge of the technical end.

Featured in the cast of 100 are Betty Bruce, Larry Adler, Virginia O'Brien, Nan Rae and Maude Davis, Alexander D'Arcy and Sunnie O'Dea.

Nile Serpent Dance Thrills Gayety Fans

Billed as "the human tornado," Princess Allabazi is creating something of a sensation this week at the Gayety in her "Serpent of the Nile" dance, with the new "Sirens of the Nile" revue.

Diane Raye, who initiated London in the art of the strip-tease, is also a headliner on the program, and Mimi Lynne appears as another exponent of the art. On the screen, Lupe Velez appears in her recent hit film, "The Mexican Spitfire," with "Prison Train" as a companion piece.

Yukon Honeymoon

By Sanford Jarrell

MAY JOHNSON and her husband, Ole, run a saloon near O'Farrell and Fillmore. It is just an ordinary joint, nothing fancy at all. They earn a living in it, but not much more than that. There are too many saloons in San Francisco.

Perry Larkin drops into May's and Ole's for his nightcap—sometimes a couple of them. He likes the couple—May, a plump Finnish woman in her early thirties, pretty of face and amiable of mood. Ole stands six feet, two in his sox, weighs about 210, all brawn and muscle. There's no monkey business in that place when Ole's around, and he's usually around, as the Johnsons live right upstairs.

On this night, Otto was at his customary spot at the end of the bar when Perry ambled in just before bedtime. No one seemed to know Otto's last name, he never spoke to any one, although he had the disconcerting habit of talking to himself, mumbling in his beard. He was just another drunken derelict. Perry had never seen him sober.

May was making Otto eat a bowl of steaming soup when Perry came in for his regular rum toddy. Otto apparently didn't want the soup, but she insisted, and he grudgingly accepted. He never seemed to pay for anything, and Perry wondered at that. Some of the regular customers kept a payday to payday cuff with May and Ole, and these accounts were kept in a small ledger. But whenever Otto had a drink of whisky, the ledger was not brought out, and no money crossed the bar to jingle in the cash register.

Otto was a big man, but a bedraggled specimen. He may have been forty or he may have been sixty. He almost never shaved; his worn suit of clothes looked like sleeping garments, too. Once Perry heard May cuss him out for hocking a brand new pair of shoes; evidently either she or her husband had bought them. On another occasion, he had seen Ole bodily carry the big tramp upstairs to forcibly give him a bath, and while Otto was in the tub May pressed his suit at the bar, sewed on some buttons and mended the more ragged places.

The Cast of Characters in "Yukon Honeymoon"

MAY and OLE, who run a saloon in Frisco.
OTTO, a derelict in whom May seems strangely interested.
LARKIN, a customer, who is curious about Otto.

MAY'S STORY

Perry's curiosity finally got the better of him that night, as Otto finished his soup and weaved out of the saloon.

"Doesn't Otto ever do anything but hit the booze?" he asked May, as he sipped his toddy.

"No," replied May. "He won't do nothing. He ain't the man he once was."

"You've known him a long time?"

"Yeah, in the Klondike."

Perry had been told that May and Ole had spent some years in and around Dawson. She had gone there as a little girl, imported into the Far North by an uncle and aunt after her parents had died in Finland. She learned to speak English, waited on tables at her uncle's hotel, married and had lived in the wilderness with her prospector husband. All this Perry knew, but only the rough fabric of the story.

It was a dull night, and Perry was the only customer. May's eyes had a reminiscent, far off look, and Perry grew hopeful.

"I'll tell you a story, Mr. Larkin," said May. "I know you're not a man to shoot off his mouth.

"It's about Otto?"

"Yea, Mr. Larkin, and maybe you'll savvy why I pay his room rent regular, and make him eat and give him free whisky. He'd die without his whisky. And Ole don't mind. It don't do any good to dress Otto up, for he gets drunk and into the pawnshop them new duds go. He buys booze with it. I don't know why. He can get all he wants here for nothing. But he goes to other bars and spends it on chiselers he don't know and then he comes back to us remorseful-like.

"Otto was a fine man, once," she continued dreamily. "Up in the Yukon they thought a lot of him. He could drink most guys under the table and just laugh about it.

"In this town I read all about fine honeymoons. I remember my honeymoon like it was yesterday. My husband was prospecting for gold about 50 miles from White Horse. We fell in love the winter before when he stayed at my uncle's hotel in Dawson. He went back to his claim in the spring and in September he was in Dawson again, and we got married. He said we'd spend the winter on his claim where nobody'd bother us.

"We took the river boat to White Horse. There we loaded our winter supplies on hired pack horses, and in three or four days we were to his cabin. It was nice and comfortable, and were we happy! I put curtains at the windows and pictures on the walls. The kitchen stove kept us nice and warm, and there was a pile of wood outside as high as a mountain. I never was so happy, Mr. Larkin."

"I can well believe that," Perry said. "I wish I could have a few months sometime away from the pavements."

"I liked it, but when the snows came it got on his nerves. I brought along a few books and a lot of old magazines, but he couldn't read English. Sometimes he'd go out looking for moose, but he never got none. He got awful short-tempered.

"We had a neighbor, about five or six miles away. He was a nice feller, and we called him the Swede. The Swede had a dog team, not much of one, but he'd use it to come over and see us and we'd sit around and talk.

Perry's curiosity finally got the better of him as Otto weaved out of the saloon.

TOO YOUNG TO DIE

"Well, one day my husband took sick. He wasn't very sick, but to hear him cry about it you'd think he was going to kick off any minute. You know what babies men are when they get a little sick. He wanted a doctor. And the nearest doctor was eighty miles away, at White Horse, and I was taking care of him all right. But no, he had to have a doctor. I told him no doctor would travel eighty miles and back to see a sick man in the winter. Well, he'd go to the doctor. He couldn't stand it no more. He was too young to die. He kept crying so much that I said I'd go get the Swede. I put a lot of blankets and a fur robe over him on the bunk and early the next morning I set out for the Swede's claim. I couldn't go very fast on my snowshoes. I carried my husband's rifle, because there was a lot of wolves around.

"I don't know how long it took me to get to the Swede's, but it must of been hours. I was near dead when I pounded on his door. He gave me a couple cups of hot tea and I felt better. I told him how crazy my husband was to get to a doctor. He said he'd try to get him there with his dog team. I said no, he ain't that sick, but maybe you can talk him out of that fool notion.

"Well, anyhow, the Swede got his dogs together, made me ride on the sled all covered up like a mummy. We got back to our cabin a lot faster than I made it to the Swede's. My husband was sure glad to see us. He went on to tell the Swede he'd die if he didn't get to that doctor in White Horse. The Swede said you don't look very sick. My husband got mad then, and then the Swede said all right, all right, I'll take you to White Horse. Get some sleep now and we'll start in the morning.

"In the morning the Swede bundled my husband up in the sled. There wasn't room for me. The Swede said he'd come right back and take me back on the next trip. I said no, I'll stay in the cabin, and he can hire a dog team in White Horse when he gets over being sick. So I kissed my husband goodby and they left. It was that afternoon the blizzard came.

"I was all right, snug and warm," May continued. "I had plenty to eat in the cabin, and there was enough firewood to last a couple of winters. But I couldn't sleep that night. I thought of those two men—my husband and the Swede—out there in the open with the wind howling and the snow flying. The blizzard lasted three days. The snow was piled up to the cabin roof and I had to shovel my way to the woodpile.

"But the worst of it," May continued, "was the wait. One week went by, and the Swede had told me he'd be back in six days sure. And then another week. It seemed like 10 years, Mr. Larkin. It was the 15th day before I heard a shout outside and the dogs barking. Sure enough, there was the Swede. I never was so glad to see anybody in my life. He said they'd holed up in a deserted shack during the storm, but that it was tough going afterward. He said my husband was in the doctor's care and the doctor said he wasn't much sick and could start back home most any day.

IN THE GUTTER

"I don't want to bore you too much, Mr. Larkin, but my husband never did come back to that claim. Every two or three days the Swede would mush over to my cabin to ask about him, and I'd always have to tell him no, he ain't back yet. He said he'd go to White Horse again and see what was the trouble, and I said no, maybe my husband don't want to risk bringing a dog team here because he don't know much about dogs. He ain't worrying about me, I said, because he knows you'll be around to look after me. And then the Swede would pitch in and saw and split a lot of wood and do a lot of other chores.

"There wasn't the ghost of an excuse for me staying there after the spring thaws, but there wasn't no way for me to get to White Horse. So the Swede said he'd go there, and come back with a pack train to take me out unless my husband was set to begin his summer work on the claim. Steve was gone about two weeks, and when he got back I knew he had something on his mind. No, Steve ain't dead, he said, but he's went to Dawson. He didn't add nothing to it, but I could guess something was wrong. He took me into White Horse with the pack train, and the doctor told me what's what. My husband, you see, had taken most of our money, and he spent the winter gambling and drinking. Maybe that's why he went to Dawson. He was ashamed of himself.

"The Swede said, 'May, every man has got to go on one big spree in his life. I been on two or three,' he said. 'He'll get over it, and be a man again. You go to Dawson and bring him back here.' So, Mr. Larkin, I took the next boat to Dawson, and I asked my uncle where is my husband? He said look in the gutter, that's where he likely is. And that's about where I found him. I took him to the hotel, got him cleaned up, and he was so ashamed of himself I had to forgive him. But we didn't go back to the claim. He said he didn't ever want to go back. He had a chance to sell it, so he did, and we opened up a little restaurant in Dawson."

"You certainly have cause for being grateful to the Swede," Perry said. He felt the narrative was ended. "No wonder you cook for him."

"Why shouldn't I cook for him?" May demanded. "I got married to him three years ago, didn't I?"

And then Perry Larkin knew who Otto was.

THE RULES

1—The Boston Record-American Rebus Game is open to all bona fide residents of the New England States, except employes of the Boston Record, the Boston American and the Sunday Advertiser, members of their families, any person acting as a proxy for another, and any person who has won $500 or more in any newspaper contest.

2—Beginning Monday, February 12th, 1940, a Rebus puzzle will be published each week-day in the Boston Record and the Boston American. Contestants may obtain their puzzles from either publication. The six puzzles published during each week will constitute a series. There will be fifteen weekly series. Answers for each week's series of puzzles should be brought or mailed to the Contest Editor c/o the Boston Record-American Rebus Game. Answers for each week's series should be submitted within the week after that series appears in the Boston Record and the Boston American.

3—One hundred (100) prizes will be awarded by the Boston Record-American in accordance with the published schedule of prizes, to those 100 contestants who, by their solutions, achieve the 100 highest scores. No contestant may win more than one prize. Neatness does not count. Do not decorate your answers.

4—In case two or more contestants are tied for a certain prize, just what particular prize each contestant may be entitled to will be determined by submitting to each tied contestant a set of tie-breaking queries and if necessary a second, third, or fourth set of tie-breaking puzzles. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of the highest scores achieved by contestants, in accordance with the instructions and scoring regulations governing the solution of such tie-breaking puzzles. At the discretion of the Boston Record and the Boston American, tied contestants may be required to work the tie-breaking puzzles without assistance, in the offices of the Boston Record or the Boston American. In case of final ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

5—In order to qualify for a prize, contestants are required to accompany each weekly series of answers with a remittance of 10c in coin. An individual file will be set up for each qualified contestant and each weekly set of answers duly filed therein. After the contest closes, each individual file will be duly judged.

To those contestants who complete the 15 weekly series of puzzles and who in all other ways conform to the rules of the contest, the Boston Record-American will present a special series of fifteen original Rebus puzzles created by Harold Hart, foremost puzzle expert.

6—Any person, by entering this contest, agrees to abide by and accept as final the decision of the Boston Record and the Boston American on all matters affecting this contest, including among others the qualification of contestants, their disqualification at any time for any cause deemed necessary, the application of the rules, the judging of answers, the scoring of solutions, and the interpretation of such instructions (governing individual puzzles) as may be announced by the contest officials. By entering this contest participants agree that their answers become the property of the Boston Record and the Boston American and will not be returned.

7—Entries that are not signed by names will not be considered eligible for prizes nor will any claims to the ownership of such entries be recognized. Entries which are illegible will not be considered. The Boston Record and the Boston American will not be responsible for entries or communications lost or unduly delayed either from the contestant to the Boston Record-American Contest Editor or from the Boston Record-American Contest Editor to the contestant.

And Jackson Girls Get Their Tans

In the Air

Into the fires of spring, the winter garments of raccoon fling ... for Jackson College girls have decided winter's past ... and Jane Lambert dons a bathing suit to study on the lawn.

Jackson's 'Firsts' for Glamour

The lovely young ladies of Jackson College took advantage of the first long delayed warm day of spring to get in a number of "firsts" of the season.

Slim dark-eyed Betty Jane Lambert of Bridgeport, Ct., jumped in a bathing suit after class and went out on the lawn to get her first coat of tan ... and also a few pages of study in preparation for final examinations.

They opened the outdoor tennis courts for the first time and Florence Thompson, athletic blonde from Pride's Crossing, rallied off a fast set with pretty Helen Monteiro of Manchester, N. H.

Many of the other outdoor beauties moved down to the golf links in shorts and gym suits to join the winter withees from their studies.

But all these preparations are not simply in honor of the weather or the season. There's an item called GLAMOUR that has come in for considerable discussion around neighboring campuses of Tufts and Jackson.

It all started several weeks ago when Tufts students chose an "off campus" non-Jackson girl as queen of one of their functions. The Jackson coeds were justifiably indignant, and neglected to invite a single Tuft to their junior prom.

Now they're sorry, however, because the Tufts junior prom, biggest social event of the season, is about on the rocks. Seems the local talent has not been exactly overwhelmed with invitations.

So the girls are getting busy. They felt that their honor as well as their glamour is at stake, and all the spring preparations are really to convince the boys next door that the grass is really greenest right across the fence.

Good News—Weather's always news ... and good news to Helen Montgomery (left) and Florence Thompson who doff skirts for shorts and a game of tennis ... now that the Jackson College courts are newly opened. And tomorrow's May Day.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S sudden intention to abolish the exceptionally competent Air Safety Board and to make the highly successful Civil Aeronautics Authority a subservient political bureau in the Department of Commerce is encountering the opposition that it deserves.

In Congress, Senator McCarran, of Nevada, and Representative Lea, of California, have introduced resolutions to reject the President's third and fourth departmental reorganization orders, wherein the proposed changes are carried.

SEN. McCARRAN
Wants Safe Aviation

Senator McCarran and Representative Lea were the co-authors of the Civil Aeronautics Act, which was passed by Congress in 1938 after years of study, and which was then given the President's earnest approval.

Under this Act, our civil aviation has established A FLAWLESS WORLD RECORD FOR AIR SAFETY, in complete contrast with A LONG PERIOD OF DISASTERS while aviation was under the control of the Commerce Department to which the President now seeks to return it.

Remembering the ghastly record of fatal airplane accidents under the old abandoned system of "regulation," it is only natural that the Air Line Pilots' Association is thoroughly alarmed by the Administration's current action.

Likewise supporting the opposition in Congress is the American Federation of Labor, which has asked the two Houses to defeat the pending reorganization orders.

But—and this is important to remember—the Civil Aeronautics Authority and the Air Safety Board will not be left alone unless THE PUBLIC does something.

Under the bureaucratic Reorganization Act, the President's pending orders will AUTOMATICALLY go into effect within 60 days after promulgation unless they are COUNTERMANDED by a concurrent resolution ADOPTED BY BOTH HOUSES OF CONGRESS.

Congress cannot even prevent the impending demoralization of aviation by merely refusing to approve it.

Congress must POSITIVELY and EMPHATICALLY disapprove it.

Consequently, every citizen who wants air travel to be KEPT SAFE, and every organization which wants aviation to continue to advance and provide increasing employment, should appeal directly to Congress to adopt the McCarran-Lea resolution.

PROPERLY AND FITTINGLY today's meeting of the Massachusetts Council for Abolition of the Death Penalty will concern itself with capital punishment.

Since the grewsome execution of two young men several months ago at Charlestown, the electric chair has been widely discussed and many thought-provoking opinions offered.

Among these is the criticism of Dr. A. J. Cronin, brilliant author of "The Citadel," who says:

"Capital punishment is the utter degradation of humanity. The electric chair is not even a scientific way of taking life."

Dr. Cronin and thousands of others who share his belief deny the right of the State to take away human life, which it did not give and which it can never restore.

DR. A. J. CRONIN
Flays Death Chair

Opposing them are large numbers of sincere persons who honestly feel that capital punishment, whether it be hanging, electrocution or the lethal gas chamber, inspires fear in the hearts of potential killers and thus prevents murders.

But, unfortunately, the experience of the ages indicates that the theory just does not hold true in practice.

In our neighbor State, Maine, lawmakers abolished capital punishment in 1876. They re-enacted it for murder alone in 1882. But in 1885, the Governor asserted "there has been an unusual number of cold-blooded killings within the State the two years last past."

So the Legislature abolished hanging, and Maine for years has had the lowest homicide rate in all the United States.

VOTES for children! That is what was discussed in France. It was called the family system of voting; one vote for mama, one vote for papa and one vote for every three children. What do you think of the idea? Can't you just see the three kids of the family holding a meeting to decide what way to vote?

SAID FANNIE BRICE: "People like to feel miserable. You make them laugh they will forget you, but if you make them cry they will never forget you." This recalls Fannie's greatest song hit was the tear jerking torch song "My Man" . . . "You said the British believe fat men do not make good executives," writes a client. "They are right. This is especially true of men who have been thin but have become fat. At Austerlitz, Napoleon was lean; at Waterloo he was fat. And the victor, Wellington, was lean."

HOW MANY MILES per gallon do you get on long trips? All we can get is 18 miles, yet we have a small car. It is a checked record that one man on a 2000-mile trip got an average of 34 miles per gallon. Part of his secret might have been in his speed, which was 41 miles per hour. Have made several trans-continental auto trips and noticed nearly everybody on the highway was going 60 miles an hour or faster.

"NURSES all walk alike," says an interne. "They walk from the hips, a free swinging purposeful healthy walk, more of a swift movement than a series of steps." Will 15 or 20 nurses please call at the office and walk up and down a while so I can check on this claim . . . Among the high'y original ideas voiced by Groucho Marx, Esq., is one of stuffing spaghetti with bicarbonate of soda thus causing and curing indigestion at the same time . . . Long ago the officials of the Dutch East Indies decided to dynamite the oil wells if their territory was attacked by Japan. In the World War the oil wells in Rumania were dynamited and it took 18 months for them to produce again.

THERE IS SUCH a thing as getting too much publicity. There are too many photographs of Ann (I Got Oomph!) Sheridan being published. This may result in her being just one more of the long list of Hollywood morning glories. Ann better save her money.

-t- -t- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, April 30—I had a very full day Sunday. We left the hotel in Charlotte, N. C., a little after nine-o'clock and visited two centers within a five-mile area outside the city.

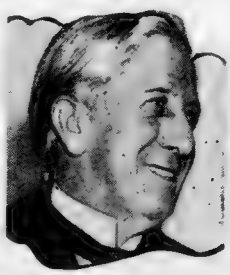
The first one, a boys' resident center, was giving the boys training in construction work. They were building a number of buildings and putting their own camp in good working order. The allied training in arithmetic, reading blue prints, English and all matters pertaining to the jobs they are doing, seemed very excellent.

DURING the day we traveled across the state toward Raleigh. The girls' centers are stressing home-making, but at the same time they are trying to branch out and give them more than sewing and the strictly home-making courses.

The original thing about their program for girls is the fact that to meet the needs in their own state, they are combining training.

For instance, a girl can learn clerical work and salesmanship, and serve either as a salesgirl or in the office, if she is not busy behind the counter.

In small towns this is very necessary and will mean increased employability for the girls. They have worked out other combinations which I think will be very valuable.



GOVERNOR CLYDE HOEY
First Lady Visits His Estate

We also saw one of the best agricultural projects I have seen. The boys are building their own cabins of the type used on farms in that vicinity. They cut down the trees and strip the bark.

On one of the projects they make the shingles used on the roof. They do all the cement work, wiring and plumbing.

They work in the fields and do some really valuable farming, because it will prepare them for some of the changes which must be made if the agricultural life of the state is to be improved.

They are also learning a good deal about forestry, cleaning up underbrush, preventing forest fires and allowing the trees to come to maturity for harvesting, and reforesting.

One of the most valuable things done in all these resident projects is education in a democratic way of life. They have established self-government. The boys and girls take responsibility and function as they should in their own communities. I think this is going to be a tremendous help in making them conscious of their future responsibilities as citizens.

WE ENDED the day by arriving in Raleigh about 7:30, and the entire staff entertained the Governor and Mrs. Hoey, Miss Thompson and me at dinner. It was a distinctly profitable and encouraging day for me.

I felt the young people were happy and hopeful, that Mr. John Lang was a successful NYA state administrator and his staff—all of them young—had the qualities to continue to develop this program profitably.

WHY HITLER COMBS HAIR THAT WAY

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, April 30—"Did you know that Hitler has a scar on his forehead—and that's why he combs his hair that way?" Carleton Smith states at the Beachcombers. "I know that's true—because I lunched with Hitler twice . . . Incidentally, when I saw Leon Trotsky last month he described Stalin as 'an hysterical parvenu' " . . . "Remember, in that last picture we made, when Jimmy Cagney visited the set and started doing the scene for me, while the cameras were grinding?" John Garfield reminisces with Burgess Meredith at Sardi's . . . "And we got even," Meredith adds, "by dressing as cops and walking into the shot he was making—and we threw those phony bombs" . . . "Oh, that's nothing," Phil Loeb relates. "When we made 'Room Service' the camera was focused on the door through which Harpo Marx was to come. The camera started working and Harpo came through—stark naked."

MAE MURRAY

"I'VE BEEN ILL," Mae Murray confesses at the Havana-Madrid. "This is the first time since last August that I've visited a night club" . . . "Janet Flanner is returning to France," a reporter relates at the Brown Derby. "The only things her friends in Paris asked her to bring back are red flannel underwear and Cape Cod lighters" . . . "Henry Efrom, the stage manager for 'Liliom,' has written a new play," Keenan Wynn states at the Gay 90's. "We like Henry, and like his play, so a group of us—including Janet Fox, of 'Higher & Higher,' Whitner Bissell, who was in '2 On An Island,' and Adrien Marden, who played in 'The Women' and 'The American Way'—will play it for one special performance for producers who want to see it."

"AT THE VERSAILLES, Mrs. Harry Richman met some of the directors of the company in which her holdings have been invested," a songwriter reports in Lindy's. "She complained that she hasn't received any dividends—so their spokesman said: 'We'll present you with part-dividends now' and sent a bottle of champagne to her table."

"FELIX VON HAPSBURG toured this country with his brother, Prince Otto, and Blivens Davis asked Felix about that trip," a radio executive reports at Lum Fong's. "Felix said: 'We liked all of it. But best of all we liked a wonderful place called Wichita' " . . . "Teddy Bergman, who has made his name famous as a radio actor, is in William Saroyan's new show," a producer informs at the Hurricane. "Bergman is sure this is the beginning of a new career for him—and so he's changed his name to Alan Reed."

MEMOIR OF A WEEKEND: The South Station, hot and puffy with steam at three o'clock of a Sunday afternoon as The Pilgrim pants to start its four-and-a-half hour run to New York on new fast New Haven schedules . . . The pullmans cool after the station platform, the coaches filled with skylarking boys and girls bound for fun . . . Except the coach for newspapermen going to a preview of the New York World's Fair . . . The train jolts . . . The first fields still gray and brown from Winter, with little sign of Spring, the sky above is bright, and soft with sun . . . Main highways alongside the tracks are lined with endless parades of autos . . . In a field, a farmer is plowing the rich black loam with a two-horse team . . . You can smell the dryness of the topsoil even inside the train . . .

ENDLESS FIELDS and patches of scrub brush . . . Senseless one-track dirt roads that follow the train a little way, peter into nothing . . . Eating on the train, that used to be such an adventure back in childhood, that is why childhood is happy, its sorrows are small sorrows, its simple joys great . . . Or is that in retrospect? . . . Talk and talk, endless talk, the noise of dishes and glassware . . .

THE LIGHTS OF NEW YORK, at first faint lines of fireflies strung like popcorn against the dark highways, then clusters of lights in the outlying suburbs, homes and stores . . . Gradually, building to a crescendo of illumination, a Wagnerian opera of light, the city itself, the most magnificent center of mankind in all the world . . . The fabulous bridges are cobwebs of light tracery flung high against the sky, tipped with red; great buildings build tier on tier of floods of light till they become part of the heavens themselves . . . With the poor capitals of Europe groping in darkness, their own darkness, perhaps, here light and sound thunder against the senses . . .

THE NEXT MORNING a preview of the Fair, which opens May 11 . . . "The World's Fair of 1940, in New York, for peace and freedom" . . . Fine sounding words . . . In the dim haze of the early morning, the sun hung faintly above the mists, the great towers barely visible, the periphere and trylon are dull white, steeplejacks like flies are slung from the top . . . $25 a day, they get, for painting . . . "Like in the newspaper business," someone says, and there is a laugh, for that is a good joke . . . All the countries, at war or not, all the states, the great industries, are refurbishing their exhibits for a new "World of Tomorrow" . . .

HERE IS OUR CONTRIBUTION to civilization, our trains, this brilliant architecture, this uproarious sculpture, this sheer genius . . . Here are our arts, our minds, our fine dreams, here is the genius of the past, the art exhibit, Fra Angelico, Andrea del Sarto, Raphael, all are here . . . Here is man devoted to building, artist and artisan, here is no man designing guns or aircraft carriers, which are immoral of themselves . . . That is

WESTERN ROLE FOR McCREA

By Louella O. Parsons

Joel McCrea

HOLLYWOOD, April 30—Nearly fell over from surprise the other day when someone said that Joel McCrea was one of the richest actors in Hollywood. On second thought I don't know why I should have been so surprised since Joel has been in the top salary brackets for years and hardly has a day off between pictures. His name, during the past year, has become almost as important in Westerns as Gary Cooper's, so no wonder RKO is paging him for "Valley of the Sun," the Clarence Budington Kelland yarn which Harry Edington just purchased.

I understand that Bob Sisk, who will produce, is so sure Joel's name will be on the dotted line before the end of the week that he is already planning the picture around him—and you can be sure there will be plenty of riding and typical Western carryings-on, because McCrea can handle a horse just like a professional.

GINGER ROGERS

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: The Lloyd Nolans couldn't be happier, on account of the stork has promised them a visit Nov. 1 and it will be their first; Cary Grant and Rosalind Russell having more fun at the Sphinx Club and by the way, isn't this a new twosome? They met when they made "His Girl Friday"; Kay Francis and Edwin Justus Mayer at the Bublichki; George Brent with oomph Annie Sheridan and Ralph Forbes and Mrs. F. at the Hollywood Tropics. The only surprising thing about this foursome is that George and Ralph were both wed to Ruth Chatterton.

BINNIE BARNES gave her niece Rosetta a birthday party at the Wilshire Bowl and everyone commented on how much the 15-year-old looks like her aunt; Countess Dorothy Di Frasso, back from New York where she went for her brother, Bert Taylor's birthday party; Russell Birdwell took the Clipper today for China on a month's holiday.

GREGORY RATOFF has bought the Darryl Zanuck home on Hillcrest which has been idle since the Zanucks moved to the beach; Mrs. Hal Roach is off for the Kentucky Derby. Hal returned to Los Angeles yesterday to get ready for the preview of "Turnabout" and the party he is giving tonight; Ginger Rogers and Howard Hughes dining quietly together at the Gotham, so in spite of rumors they still are enjoying each other's company.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

ONE MORNING Dr. Allen said to his wife, "Janet, I'll need your assistance with the Widow Johnson. She's returning from the hospital today and will require a nurse for about a week. What do you say?"

She acknowledged her consent scornfully. "That wealthy old skinflint! Well, you can be assured that she'll pay for MY services in cash, and not with a knitted muffler."

Although Dr. Allen had been married for 10 years, his patients still wondered by what ruse his former nurse, Janet White, had persuaded him to marry her. Their dispositions were so diametrically opposite.

He was kind, sympathetic and unselfish, while she was uncompromising, austere and haughty. His patients did not hesitate to inform him when they had no money with which to pay a bill.

But his wife was much more practical, even to the extent of being ruthless at times.

JANET approached Mrs. Johnson's bedside on the final day of her attendance. "You'll not be needing me any longer, Mrs. Johnson. Your niece can take care of you now."

As she turned to leave the room, Mrs. Johnson called to her and held up a beautifully crocheted purse for her inspection.

Janet exclaimed: "Did you make it? Why it's exquisite!" Then she stopped abruptly, remembering the knitted muffler which had paid for her husband's recent services. She handed an itemized bill to Mrs. Johnson.

Mrs. Johnson smiled and said: "But, you don't understand my dear. This is just a little token of my gratitude."

Coldly Janet replied: "Thank you, but I must request that my services be paid for in cash. Crocheted bags and knitted mufflers do not pay gas bills, electric bills or the landlord."

MRS. JOHNSON quietly asked her how much was due, and Janet told her 40 dollars. Then, Janet stared, astonished, as Mrs. Johnson opened the crocheted purse which she had offered as a token, and extracting a roll of five 20 dollar bills, handed two of them to her, and put the remainder in her pocket.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

GET GRIM! Stop taking your Americanism for granted! Stop thinking that your Liberty is assured forever! Stop believing that comfort and conveniences are your natural right!

THEY AREN'T! Americanism is the rarest and most expensive phenomenon on earth. It didn't "just happen." Nor will it continue to "just happen" . . . unless you do plenty about it.

Americanism was born in the hearts
Of oppressed and desperate men.
It was born in fury and frenzy—
Tragedy and tears—
It was bought with shed blood
And shattered flesh—
It didn't come easy—
It didn't come easy—
IT DIDN'T COME EASY!
It came out of the guts
And out of the grimness
Of angry, praying,
Weeping, fighting
Men and Women

Liberty never comes easy.
Equality never comes easy.
Opportunity never comes easy.
Comfort never comes easy.
These things always come
From the sweat and tears,
The blood and prayers
Of somebody.
And the minute
You stop praying
And bleeding,
Weeping and fighting,
Your liberty stops
And your opportunity
Is a washout.

Get grim! Get GRIM!
The freedom your fathers made
Is no longer safe!
The security your mothers created
Is no longer assured!
The comfort and abundance
You have long enjoyed
Are today in jeopardy!
The world has gone back
To the jungle!
You can no longer profit by
Your fathers' labors—
You can no longer rest
On your fathers' laurels—
You can no longer
Eat safe and easy
At America's "free lunch,"
If you want to enjoy Americanism—
If you want to keep Americanism—
YOU MUST GET GRIM!

You must begin to fight
Against other ways of life,
You must begin to sacrifice
For this better way of life—
You must begin to see
That Freedom is
A rare and precious thing,
A chancey and fragile thing,
A thing easily lost,
And you must make up your mind
That it shall not be lost!
YOU . . . MUST . . . GET . . . GRIM!

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

WE HAD A PRE-VIEW of the good old summertime yesterday . . . not only in the warm sunny weather . . . but at the parties which marked the opening of two outstanding art exhibits . . .

Views of our stern and rockbound coast, painted by one of New England's foremost marine artists, Jay Connaway of Monhegan, Me., won the admiration of many prominent Bostonians who spend the summer at seaside resorts . . . This was at the Vose Galleries, while over on Newbury st., George Shaw gave a cocktail party in his attractive studio to celebrate the opening of an exhibit of colorful flower paintings by New Englanders . . .

Serve as Pourers

MRS. MALCOLM BANCROFT (Jean Tuckerman), one of society's accomplished sailors, was very enthusiastic about the marine paintings which reveal our rugged coastline in all its moods, from a bleak stormy morning to the calm of a moonlit evening . . . She served as one of the pourers at the flower decked tea table and wore a trick little hat of pink clover blossoms to accent the pink in her printed frock . . .

Jean Evatt, another of the younger pourers, was a bright figure in a scarlet toque and black and white printed suit . . . Miss Sally Fairchild and Mrs. Henry Chamberlain also poured, the latter wearing a novel dress of brown silk lavishly trimmed with peasant embroidery and a rust antelope hat . . .

Discussing the beautiful colorings of the sea as they chatted over tea cups were Christina Lowell, her sister, Frances, and their mother, Mrs. Alfred P. Lowell of Mt. Vernon st. . . . Others touring the gallery were Mrs. Frank Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. George N. Proctor, 3d, Miss Florence Dustin, Mrs. Seleck Sears, Mrs. Paul Jones and the artist's wife, Mrs. Jay Connaway, who was being dated up for luncheons and drives to historic spots during her stay in Boston . . .

Flower Paintings Win Admiration

THE POPULARITY of Mayflower pink has even spread to outdoor terrace furniture judging by the garden seats upholstered in pink pigskin which formed a pleasant setting for the flower paintings on the walls at George Shaw's . . .

Prominent Bostonians whose paintings are represented in this exhibit include Elizabeth Saltonstall, T. Mott Shaw, Polly Thayer (Mrs. Donald Starr), whose white orchid painted against a vibrant blue background won a great deal of admiration; Mrs. William Hunt (Rosamond Pier), Grace Collier, Sally Cross Bill, Margaret Farnsworth and many others . . .

Robert Hallowell's large flower painting done on glass instead of canvas, was one of the novelties of the exhibit and Rosie Hunt's swan, frog and water lilies, in a colorful arrangement is another example of this young artist's fine technique which has been acclaimed by judges in national as well as local exhibits . . . Rosie was on hand for the party together with one of her Milton neighbors, Carolyn Pierce, and others attending included Mrs. Ralph Emerson, Mrs. Bill, whose flower decked hat was as gay as her painting; Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Jr., wearing a corsage of pussy willows on her tailored gray suit; Mrs. William Faversham and Mrs. George Cushing . . .

Busy Socialites

SEEN ABOUT TOWN . . . Jean Saltonstall and Mary Wigglesworth, both in gay tweeds and bareheaded, watching the swan boats make their lazy way around the Public Garden pond . . . Rachel Warner of Chestnut st., former president of the Junior League, walking home through the Common from a downtown shopping tour . . . Mrs. John E. Lawrence (Anne Tuckerman), strolling along Newbury st. in a modish black ensemble with silver fox scarf and intricately draped scarlet turban . . . Anne Dick dashing into a Charles st. hamburg stand with a reversible-coated escort . . . Sue Plummer and Ruth Weyburn headed for a soda fountain on Boylston st. . . .

Cooking

Serve Fruit Often

By MARTHA LEE

Fruit is near the top of the list now in any recommended program for child feeding although it was taboo in the Middle Ages.

Today, when the importance of feeding the child for health is so much a matter of public concern that a day of special observance is annually proclaimed by the President, and the first week in May is "Baby Week," it is difficult to realize that until the closing years of the last century people still thought fruits bad for children because they might give rise to fevers.

Orange juice is usually the first food other than milk that the infant receives today. Modern mothers have a working knowledge of the essentials of diet and are acquainted with the necessity for giving citrus fruit juice with its plentiful Vitamin C for health protection. Advances in science have been accompanied by popular education but much Vitamin C deficiency still exists. Too often, the baby is assumed to be healthy until proved otherwise.

PROTECT SCHOOL CHILD'S DIET

It is just as important to keep the school child's diet fortified with protective foods as it is to feed the baby for health. Good nutrition, health authorities agree, tends to maintain a greater degree of immunity to disease.

Uncooked fruits and simple cooked fruits are wholesome for children and popular with them as well as with the adult members of the family. Simplest and among the most healthful of desserts is the orange fruit bowl, ever available on buffet or dining table.

Here are other delicious ways to incorporate fruit in the diet:

ORANGE AMBROSIA

Peel and slice an orange. Halve or quarter slices. Sprinkle with sugar to taste and 1½ tbsp. coconut. A few quartered marshmallow may be mixed with the orange. Makes 1 serving.

BANANA MILK SHAKE

1 fully ripe banana
1 cup cold milk
(Additional flavoring may be added if desired)

Slice or break banana into medium mesh wire strainer. Press through strainer with a spoon. Add other ingredients and mix into a drink shaker or fruit jar. Shake well and serve cold. Makes 12 ounces—two medium-sized drinks. Especially fine for children.

FAIRY RING SALAD

Peel an orange, cut in slices, saving all juice. Arrange in a ring on salad plate, covered with shredded lettuce. Place a mound of cottage cheese in center of ring. Serve with fruit salad dressing.

Variations: Combine chopped raisins, dates or nuts with cheese, or use as a center in place of cheese:

½ banana, diced and mixed with 1 marshmallow, cut in pieces

FRUIT CUP DESSERTS

Too many people make hard work of their desserts. Quick and easy to prepare, as well as more healthful than heavier desserts, and particularly good for children, is a fruit cup. For this, choose fresh fruits in season, making liberal use of the juice and flavor qualities of the orange and the lemon. A good mixture combines:

1 cup orange sections or half slices
1 cup banana slices
1 cup diced apple or pear
½ cup shredded dates
2 tbsp lemon juice
Sugar to taste

PIMIENTO OLIVE SALAD

¼ cup ripe mission olives, chopped
½ cup celery
¼ cup pimientos, chopped
4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
2 tbsp. green pepper, chopped
½ tsp. salt
Mayonnaise

Mix olives, pimientos, celery, peppers and salt. Arrange sliced eggs on lettuce and sprinkle with salt. Place a mound of the olives on top of eggs. Serve with mayonnaise.

Smart Set Fashions

From Arabian Nights

THAT famous story-telling gal out of the Arabian nights wore something specially seductive in flared harem trousers . . . and you must admit she knew a thing or two . . . so Phil Macdonald, a creator of feminine fashions, decided this was a pretty nifty idea to perpetuate in dinner pajamas. Alumni Dance Parade

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—A junior class alumni association is sponsoring a dance. It has been planned to have a parade of classes in the nature of a grand march. How is such a parade organized with respect to order of classes and leaders?

2—Also, do the hosts and hostesses have any specific duty or duties, such as standing in a receiving line, or do they simply mingle with the guests? Y. L.

1—The march should be led by the oldest class in the association and should progress in the order of seniority, the youngest class being the last in the march. Leading each class should be the officers of that class, in the order of their importance. After the officers the hostesses and hosts chosen from that class and then the members of the class.

2—If there is to be a receiving line the hostesses and hosts should be members of that line. If not, they would mingle with the guests.

You Can Be Beautiful

'Liquid Mist' Glamourizer

By ARLINE GOULD

IN OUR TRAVELS about this beauty-wise continent . . . we've noticed a significant glamour-item . . . that with all the lovely, lovely perfumes to be had, there is one which inevitably would turn up, enhancing the most electric personalities among the glitterbugs . . . Ethel duPont Roosevelt, a social butterfly who made her mark in Hollywood, a career girl whose name is known from coast to coast . . . girls who make news . . .

It must be good, thought we to ourselves . . . for we'd always loved it anyway, and felt pleased with such dazzling confirmation of the fact . . . It happens to be one of the more expensive and exclusive fragrances . . . and it has a distinctly fresh, charming air, not an exotic in the least, but immensely appealing to the masculine element. Our news then . . . is that, for the first time . . . you can get it in an extremely inexpensive "liquid mist" to be used after the bath!

For $1.25 you may have a generous 4-ounce bottle of this fragrant mist . . . and it's worth your while to get the 35c atomizer that goes with it, if you prefer using one. Next summer you might keep your flowery mist in the refrigerator, and learn what a delight it can be on a hot day.

This is really something new . . it isn't a toilet water, nor a cologne, nor perfume . . . it's a liquid mist perfumed with the famous scent and it's so delicate that you can use it generously as a friction lotion. Your skin will be scented with it for hours.

If you'd like to learn all about this "liquid mist" for bath lotion or atomizing . . . phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Love

Flays Girls As Gold-Diggers

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man of 27 years, got a steady job and good clothes. I'm considered good-looking and come from a respected family, but I don't seem able to get along with the girls. I've gone with 10 or 12 girls in the last 18 months, and they all seem to be gold-diggers. Are all girls like that?

I've taken them to shows, auto rides, bought them candy, flowers, Christmas gifts, birthday presents etc. Of course, I haven't given the same girl all these things, but have been fairly generous. They seem to want to go with a fellow just until they've had their birthday or Christmas present — whichever date happens to be nearest at hand. After that they forget everything.

Please print this and see what these females have to say. B. E. L.

No, indeed, all girls are not gold-diggers. But, my dear lad, if you go fishing in a gold-fish bowl, you must expect to catch goldfish. Probably the young ladies who appeal to your taste go in for shoes with heels four inches high, monkey caps for hats, and make up like an old-fashioned barber pole. Try your luck with the less spectacular type. You'll find them less grasping.

Dress Afire, Wife Seriously Burned

FRAMINGHAM, April 30—Seriously burned when her clothing became ignited from a stove, Mrs. Arthur Schuman, 25, was under treatment at the Leonard Morse Hospital today.

The young woman, a widow, fell unconscious in a back hall after her dress caught fire. The barking of her dog attracted the attention of a neighbor, Clarence Eldridge, who beat out the flames.

Delay Asked On Flag Salute

The Quincy school committee today was petitioned to take no further action in pending flag salute cases until a decision has been handed down in the United States Supreme Court.

More than 200 Quincy residents signed the petition, which was turned over to the committee by Supt. of Schools James M. Muir.

The committee had been scheduled to consider tonight the case of Calvin D. Wentworth, Jr., 10, North Quincy pupil, who had refused to salute the flag. The other case is that of a suspended teacher, Miss Elizabeth M. Graham of the Webster school.

SEN. GREEN UNDER KNIFE

BALTIMORE, April 30 (AP)—Sen. Theodore Francis Green (D.) of Rhode Island underwent an operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital. His condition is good.

Sox Clubhouse Scene: Cronin Sorts Fan Mail

"SUPPOSE," I SAID TO JOE CRONIN IN the Red Sox clubhouse this morning, as he shucked the envelopes from a market basketful of letters in a futile effort to weed out his business correspondence from the heap of fan mail, "a baseball lawyer should walk in and say, 'Now sir! I hear you are laying claim to the American League pennant. Will you settle for a guarantee of second place and sign a quit claim right now?'"

AUSTEN LAKE

Joe continued slitting the throats of his mail with a broad thumb. "No!" he said. "We'll prosecute. There's nothing behind first place."

Boy! Tear up that writ of nolo contendere. Dig out the file of 1916 precedents.

"The boys are getting up a head of steam," continued Joe, peeping into his envelopes as though looking for a check, and fishing out one. "Here's a guy who encloses a five-leaf clover. Says he picked it along the border of the outfield."

What about the Red Sox slogan, "We'll beat the Yankees"? Looks like no monopoly. Everybody was beating the Yankees.

"Yeh!" said Joe, shaking out a piece of ruled copybook paper from an envelope. "Youngster named Harry Schick of Woburn wants me to get the signature of all the Red Sox and send them to him. Hay! Johnny (to Orland, the clubhouse helper), "take care of that!"

The writer is reminded of the trunkful of fan mail that Cronin received during the spring training trip at Sarasota, which Joe and the club's lady aide answered in toto—asking letters, advising letters, scolding, praising and wishing letters. "I remember," mused Joe, "that Walter Johnson paid out $235 for postage after a Washington World Series to answer fan mail. He dictated and the late Mrs. Johnson typed almost every afternoon for four months."

Bob's Conscience Dollar

THE BIG PERSONALITIES OF THE GAME are usually conscientious about replying to juvenile mail, and Bob Quinn of the Bees, especially, is a model of promptitude in this respect. On Bob's office wall, neatly framed and glass covered, there used to hang a pencil scrawl and a dog-eared dollar bill. The scrawl read, "I sneked over yore fense last week. Her is a dolor becuaz I am ashamed for doin it." The scrawl was unsigned and so Bob never learned the name of the writer. But he often said, "I wish I could find that boy, I'd send him a season pass."

Now Joe mused aloud as he read, "I'm telling the boys that the western teams are the ones we got t'beat. We lost the pennant to them last year, dropped thirty-seven games to Cleveland, White Sox and Detroit last year and win only 28. Yankees lost twenty and won thirty-six to the same three teams."

He took a stack of letters and shaped them like a fan. "Here's enough invitations to smokers, banquets and buffet-luncheons to feed the boys for a week. Funny, everybody who gives a party wants to exhibit the players. And every one of them say, 'At least send Lefty Grove, or Jimmy Foxx, or Ted Williams.'"

Joe held up a page of hotel stationery. "This is one of those please-settle-a-bet birds," he explained. "He writes, 'If a pane of window glass, a foot square, was set up at the regular pitching distance, how often should a major league pitcher, like Lefty Grove, be able to break it out of ten pitches? My friend says ten times. I say no more than seven.'"

Joe massaged his prognathous chin and weighed the question. "Pshaw," he said, "pitchers don't pitch that way. They throw at areas, not at targets! But in the bull pen, I'd say Grove should bust it seven out of ten. I've seen some pitchers who couldn't bust it at all, hey Frank?" Shellenbach, the pitching coach, grinned sleepily, and said, "Gosh, yes!"

Williams Woos His Bat

Cronin held up a lavender-colored envelope. "Here's one for Doc Cramer. Gal wants to know if he's married. Guess we'll have to print a list of the eligible bachelors."

Dom DiMaggio sat on the rubbing table with a nude leg extended while Trainer Win Green's nimble fingers kneaded his ankle with slow circular motions. "Just to get the circulation going," he grunted. "Hurt any?"

"Just in a spot," said Dom, wincing suddenly. "That's it!"

"Good sign," said Win. "No bone bruise, just a muscle."

The Sox stood around in various stages of undress. "Meeting after batting practice," announced Joe, with authority. "We'll go over the Chicago hitting list." He swept his litter of shucked envelopes together and stowed them under the rubbing table. "I'll answer them after the Cleveland series," he grinned. "Maybe then we'll have more news to write."

SOX ON TOP GOING WEST, JOE CRONIN PREDICTS

By BILL GRIMES

After taking seven out of ten games from the Eastern contenders for the American Legion diadem, the Red Sox will meet the Chicago White Sox this afternoon at Fenway Park.

LEFTY GROVE
Seeks 2nd Victory Today

Lefty Grove will be on the hilltop for the Croninmen, pitted against long Johnny Rigney. It will be Grove's third time out.

He opened the season with a remarkable exhibition of hurling against the Nats in Washington, allowing only two scratch hits and no runs. A week ago, Grove was forced to retire after pitching six innings against the Griffmen. It was a bitter cold day and Old Man Mose didn't have his stuff after he'd warmed up. For four innings, Grove allowed only one real hit but in the 5th round, the Nats hopped on him for four runs and then pushed across another in the ensuing chapter. With the Red Sox leading 6 to 5, Lefty stepped down in favor of Herb Hash, who blew the game, before he was relieved by Joe Heving.

CHISOX OFF BADLY

Under favorable weather conditions, Lefty Grove should be able to hang a defeat on Jimmy Dykes' White Sox this afternoon. The Windy City outfit has been having its troubles this spring and is in last place, with only two wins in nine starts.

The Red Sox are playing .700 ball. They started off with two shut out victories over the Nats in Washington and broke even with the Athletics and Harrismen at home, after which they took a decision from the Yankees at Fenway Park.

In the opening game with the Athletics in Philadelphia last Saturday, Jim Bagby was sailing along smoothly until the Mackmen put on a seven run rally late in the game and grabbed the verdict. Jim Tabor broke up the second game with a homer in the 12th inning and yesterday the Sox did a real job on the A's winning by the wide margin of 11 to 3.

CRONIN PREDICTS LEAD

A combination of their win over the Athletics and Cleveland's set back by Detroit, put the Red Sox in a first place deadlock with the Indians.

Mickie Harrie, the pride of Queens Village, L. I., hurled another seven hitter yesterday against the Athletics and chalked up his second victory of the season.

A week ago today, Mickie made his debut in the American League and stopped the Nats, 7 to 2. For six innings he toyed with the Nats but in the seventh doubles by Jimmy Bloodworth and Jimmy Pofahl pushed across a tally and a Cecil Travis two bagger followed by a Bloomworth single accounted

Barnicle Faces Cubs In Bees' Western Debut

CHICAGO, Ill., April 30—The Bees get their first taste of western opposition when they open a three game series with the Cubs here this afternoon.

In view of the fact that Gabby Hartnett finally has his Cubs straightened out, the Stengelmen are stepping into tough company here at the Windy City.

Gabby can throw either youth or experience against the Bees today in Vance Page or Charlie Root, and then have Claude Passeau ready for tomorrow and Don French available for Thursday.

BARNICLE MAY GET CALL

The Bees starting pitcher is in doubt. It is expected that Casey will gamble with a rookie and Bill Barnicle of Fitchburg may get the nod. The Massachusetts boy was plenty wild when he stepped in as a relief pitcher against the Giants last week but the fact remains that he allowed only two hits in the five innings he worked and is entitled to another chance.

If the Bees get any kind of pitching they may give the Cubs an unpleasant surprise or two for the Swarm is starting to hit and the new combination seems headed for winning ball.

With Les Scarsella at first base, Bama Rowell at second and Buddy Hassett in right field, the Bees have their strongest possible offensive lineup.

DEPENDING ON PUNCH

And it's a right move on the part of Stengel to pay attention to hitting above fielding at this time because of the fact that his pitchers are not in good shape and until they regain their peak, the Bees will be forced to slug it out with the opposition on many occasions.

There was some doubt as to whether Max West would be available after having injured his thumb Sunday but Slapsie Maxie is available today and will be in there giving his all.

The Bees are here decided underdogs, but don't sell them short on any series.

Olympics 'Annulled,' Chairman Confesses

BRUSSELS, April 30 (AP)—Count Henri Baillet Latour, chairman of the Olympics committee, said today that the 1940 Olympic games were officially "annulled."

Cancellation of the games had been announced in Helsinki April 23 at a joint meeting of the organizing committee and the permanent Finnish Olympic committee.

The two groups decided that the international situation made it impossible to hold the games this summer.

Brooklyn Reds Open First Crucial Series

NEW YORK, April 30 (INS)—Baseball's first crucial series began in Cincinnati today with the Brooklyn Dodgers stacking their eight-game winning streak against the first-class pitching of the Reds, who sport a record of six wins against two losses.

The three games with the Rhinelanders were expected to provide the first real test for the only undefeated team in the majors, who chalked up all their victories against the weakest opposition in the National League—the eastern clubs.

In winning from their "weak" sisters, however, the Dodgers played heads-up baseball, and nothing can be said to add or detract from their sensational record.

DERRINGER WINS

The Reds warmed up for the series by whipping the Pittsburgh Pirates for the third straight time. Paul Derringer, aided by Harry Craft and Bill Werber, who clouted homers, came out on top in a pitching duel with Max Butcher. The score was 3 to 2.

Meantime, Brooklyn and Philadelphia were traveling and did not play.

In the only other game in the National League, the St. Louis Cards nosed out the Chicago Cubs, 6 to 5, in a 10-inning fracas.

Joe Medwick's double and Pepper Martin's pinch single in the extra frame provided the winning margin.

Dizzy Dean, who started the game for the Cubs, was chased in the fifth and relief Pitcher Ken Raffensberger was charged with the loss.

In the American League, Boston moved into a first-place tie with the Cleveland Indians. The Sox trounced the Philadelphia Athletics, 11 to 3, while Detroit was beating Bob Feller and Cleveland, 4 to 3.

YANKS WIN ONE

The Yankees finally got around to beating the Washington Senators, eking out a ninth-inning, 5 to 4, triumph. They still failed to show any old-time form at the plate and committed three errors in the field.

St. Louis and Chicago were traveling eastward and did not play.

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

AS POINTED OUT in this column last Saturday, it will be Ralph Zanelli who will get the next crack at Hammering Henry Armstrong in a bout that will be staged at the Boston Garden . . . Eddie Mead, acting for Armstrong, agreed to accept Zanelli as an opponent for Armstrong a few hours after the world's welterweight champion stopped Paul Junior.

Matchmaker "Rip" Valenti of the Goodwin Club is hot after a bout between Billy Conn, world's light heavyweight champion, and Al McCoy . . . This is a better match than the Paul Junior-Armstrong bout that drew 16,500 fans . . . Conn has been away from the ring wars on account of attacks of boils, but it is expected that Billy will soon be back in action.

The $32,000 gate at the Armstrong-Paul Junior bout has got the town boxing minded again . . . More important, managers of first class boxers like Conn, Garcia and Armstrong realize they can get large purses for bouts held here . . . One of the reasons why it was so difficult to get first class boxers to show here was on account of the belief that Boston was no longer a top boxing city.

Sergeant Eddie Mack will keep up the boxing interest with a ten-round bout between Coly Welsh of Portland and Howell King of Springfield at Mechanics Building on May 16 . . . Welsh and King are two of the best among the younger crop of middleweights and they should furnish a blistering battle.

LARRY MacPHAIL baseball system, which his critics have maintained was 90 per cent daffiness, has produced a winner at Brooklyn . . . The Dodgers have been the sensation of the National League, and they are confident they will win the pennant . . . MacPhail has introduced numerous innovations at Brooklyn . . . First it was night baseball, then running races between a game, later Babe Ruth as a coach, and now maybe a pennant . . . Even those persons who do not like MacPhail or some of his ideas must admit he gets results and does things.

Bimelech continues to be a heavy favorite to win the Derby . . . The Bradley horse will be the choice of 95 per cent of the top handicappers . . . There will be handicappers who will try to come up with the horse that will beat Bimelech, and they may be successful . . . These handicappers, however, are merely hoping that their choice will win . . . For class, Bimelech has it on the field that will start in the Derby at Churchill Downs on Saturday.

With warmer weather, the attendance figures and mutuel handle at Narragansett Park will continue to soar . . .

THE ANGEL, grotesque mat figure, will tangle with Jim Casey of Ireland at the Arena tomorrow night . . . The Angel has yet to meet with defeat since coming to the United States, and he does not believe that a Casey can halt his winning surge . . . Brother Steve, world's champion, will be in Jim's corner tomorrow.

Baseball attendance figures are behind those of a year ago as a result of the cold and rainy weather . . . Despite this, I do not believe baseball owners will consent to postpone the opening of the major league seasons . . . They are always hoping that they will experience good weather, but the breaks in recent years have been against them.

The stalls at Suffolk Downs have all been assigned . . . The late comers are being turned down . . . Despite the fact New York now has pari-mutuel betting, the New England tracks have not experienced any difficulty attracting horses . . . Other than

HUNTING COAT MEANS HUNTING TO SETTER

By DARK MONTREAL

Warmth of the sun on your back. But the bite of the easterly sharp on your face.

The shouldering blue banks swells crested and foaming with white. And spray lashing across your deck as the chunky Diesel schooner noses into wind and tide.

The taste of the salt good on your lips. The smell of the open ocean clean in your nostrils. The mewing of the gulls music in your ears.

Deep sea fishing this time of year, mister, you want to wear your winter underwear. But the veterans of the heave and haul fraternity of handline and boat rod wouldn't swap you a day of it for a year's lease on all the trout brooks this side of the Rocky Mountains.

* * *

Fred Burns of Milton, who works six days a week for a wholesale fishing tackle firm, likes to take a postman's holiday on Sunday because, you've guessed it—going fishing.

He's a deep sea angler by preference, so he planned to be aboard Cap'n Bill Corkum's T wharf schooner Lois H. Corkum bright and early this Sabbath just past.

He actually only made it with a scant tick or two of the Customs House clock to spare.

Reason for Fred's tardiness was his chance choice of his old kahki hunting coat as an outside wrap against the chill.

His Irish setter, Duke, privileged companion on the gunning trips of years, needed only one glimpse, one sniff of the familiar canvas jacket to make him sure this was another bird shooting expedition.

Duke was ecstatically bent on going along, and he wouldn't take no for an answer. By the time Fred had quieted him and locked him in the cellar for safekeeping, it was almost too late to catch the boat.

* * *

Ralph Martin of Milton, fishing with Fred Burns and Al Cadrian of Dorchester, took the Corkum's prize cod of the day. It only weighed five and three-quarters pounds, but it was worth $29 of pool money.

Stocky, smiling Bill Schafer, Back Bay artist and decorator, made an early bid for the day's honors with a four and three-eights pounder, but got beat out at the last.

Charley Comstock, Springfield printer, drove the 200-mile round trip to Boston to spend six hours on the Corkum — and only three and a half hours of it fishing at that!

Al Emory came in from Marlboro. He said he tried one day's trout fishing in Stirrup brook, out Northboro way. Wading the flooded stream, which was spread out over two or three square miles of countryside, he got lost in an alder swamp and doggone near drowned himself before he floundered out to solid ground.

"I was mired to my armpits and weighed down by my boots and wet clothes," Al said. "I'd have gone under, sure, except I pulled myself along by grabbing bushes and low tree branches. I'm going to play safe, hereafter, and stick to the open Atlantic."

Charlie Clapp and Jim Hooker of Dedham found fast pollock fishing in Vineyard Sound over the weekend.

They took a couple of dozen big fellows, averaging 25 pounds, between Squibnocket Point and the buoy.

Using light tackle and leather jigs, they got plenty of lively action. They fished from Charlie's swanky cruiser At Last, out of Falmouth.

C. C. Hartney of Boston landed a four pound striper in Sonth river at Marshfield a day or two ago. His report, received through Eddie Farrell of Bob Smith's seems to put the seal of truth on those persistant but heretofore unverified striped fishing rumors. The boys are definitely catching 'em, but apparently they aren't telling where and when they find 'em.

Bill Laubenstein of Hingham took a dozen small trout, barely over the legal limit, in one of his favorite South Shore streams, but let most of his catch go again—to grow up bigger next season! Planted fish, but well scattered and apparently thriving, Bill says. He had to fish deep to get a strike at all.

HERE'S Fred Burns of Milton on deep sea fishing boat Lois H. Corkum with $29 prize cod, caught by pal, Ralph Martin, also of Milton. Note Fred's hunting coat, pressed into emergency service for cold weather angling. Therein hangs a tale.

Dickey in Slump, Di Mag Out, Critics See Yankee Collapse

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—Mingled with the slightly surprised grins decorating local baseball fans, you'll occasionally see a long face with its owner asking, "Did you ever hear of the World Champions?"

There are still longer faces going around in utter silence. They're on the Giant fans, who are resigned to their fate. But the boys from the Bronx are beginning to wonder what has happened to the Yankees.

They're not ready to admit yet that the four-time World Champions can be beaten, and they'll tell you confidently everything will be fine just as soon as Joe DiMaggio gets back into the lineup.

Still, it has been quite embarrassing to have the Bronx Bombers lose five of their nine games and fall at one time as low as seventh place.

McCARTHY UNWORRIED

It's easy enough to see that the Yanks' difficulty has been their failure to hit. They've connected for only 62 blows—an average of slightly under seven a game—and have hit only six homers so far.

They've been dropping close decisions because they couldn't connect in the pinches, and they have been snarling at the umpires when decisions went against them. In fact, they haven't been looking like the Yankees at all.

Manager Joe McCarthy professes not to be worried about the slump.

"Remember our start last season," he says. "We lost three of our first eight. And we did that with DiMaggio in the lineup."

Still McCarthy switched his outfielders a couple of days ago, sending Charley Keller back to right and George Selkirk to left, and he admits Keller seems happier in his old post.

And yesterday he benched Bill Dickey and won a ball game when Buddy Rosar drove in the winning run with his third hit.

DICKEY HITTING .200

Dickey and DiMaggio may be the answer to all questions as to why the champions have made so few hits.

More than one expert has said the Yanks will begin to crack up as soon as their star catcher weakens. And Dickey can show only six hits for a .200 average so far.

DiMaggio, of course, hasn't played yet, but he says his injured knee feels pretty good and he expects to enter the lineup soon.

The Yanks came home today to face the St. Louis Browns, with whom they're tied for fifth place.

It's the beginning of a long stand at the stadium after a couple of weeks of hopping around the East, and it may be the beginning of happy days for the Bronx fans, too.

One-Armed Star Does 9.9 With Aid of Leather Sack

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., April 30 (AP)—Coach Jack Cogdal should be credited with an assist on Capt. Jim Hardgrove's rapid improvement as a dash star on the Illinois State Normal track team.

Hardgrove, minus a hand and wrist, lost in a hunting accident four years ago, had been unable to run in the 100-yard dash in less than 10.1 because of lost rhythm.

Cogdal riged up a leather sack filled with three-fourths of a pound of buckshot which he fastened to Hardgrove's shortened arm with leather thongs and tape.

The device weighs about the same as Hardgrove's missing wrist and hand.

Now Hardgrove runs the 100-yard without breaking his stride and has hammered his time down to 9.9 seconds.

BIMELECH RUNS DERBY TEST TODAY

Blue Grass Habitants Can't See Beyond Bradley's Horse

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 30 (AP)—A hoss is holding the mortgage on Derby town this week.

Yes, sir, it's an old fashioned meller-drammer of the bluegrass, with Bimelech the dashing hero of the piece. If Bimmie doesn't come waltzing home Saturday in the Kentucky Derby it's not going to be funny to the hardboots. There'l be a lot of folks going to the cleaners in this case, for the hardboots have gone for the Lexington Lulu with both barrels.

They've been digging into the sock and are betting him at any price, because they expect he won't pay 40 cents on the dollar, tops, on Derby Day. And even that price, after a quick look at the field he'll have to face, is a right fair bargain.

NO RIVAL LOOMS

For there's nothing in the run for the Roses, or, for that matter, in the $2500 added Derby trial mile today, which figures even to make the Bradley ace take his hair down. And they know it well down here where the Bluegrass is starting to shriek "Derby" as the vanguard of a crowd which may hit 80,000 begins pouring into town.

Some 18 Derby eligibles are in the stables along the backstretch of this picturesque racing plant. Only a dozen of these are even given an outside chance of getting to the post Saturday. It more likely will be eight or nine.

CLASS ONLY FOUR FOR PLACE

And of these, only four are even talked of for second money. This quartet is made up of the Maryland mud-ace, W. L. Brann's Pictor; the South's slop-stepper, Royal Man, purchased over the winter by Harold Clark of Miami Beach; Arnold Hanger's Dit, a shoo-in winner of last Saturday's Wood Memorial, and the California glamour-boy, Mioland.

Nowhere around the hotel lobbies does anyone give any of these a look-in for better than second money. That's how much this 66th running of the mile-and-a-quarter classic is the Beat Bimelech Derby.

BRADLEY'S BEST

And only one of these four, Royal Man, is going to try to do it in today's one mile trial. Bimmie, who Col. E. R. Bradley insists is the greatest horse he's ever owned —and he has had four Derby winners before this—is taking the trial only as a workout, simply because he hasn't any other horse in his barn to work with him.

The rest of the trial field, for all the chance anything else has to win, is strictly out of the airing. Charles T. Fisher's Sirocco, Herbert M. Woolf's Inscolad, Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Gallahadion, A. L. Ferguson's Black Brummel, L. D. Kern's Potranco, and Theodore Mueller's Connaught, the biggest horse in the Derby field, are the best of the lot, and, from their showing today, may—or may not—get an admission ticket for Saturday's big show.

IT'S AN OUT—That foul fly Catcher Vic Finos of Everett is pursuing has little chance of escaping this competent schoolboy. Top center, shortstop George Burnham sharpens his batting eye for the tough competition ahead. Everett is ready for the merry month of May, when the annual school title usually is decided.

STRIKE—Jackie Comerford, all around athlete, starts to blind the opposition with a fireball. Comerford was a brilliant passer last fall with the Everett eleven, and he's continuing his winning pitching in baseball.

LIGHT BRIGADE—They're charging but they don't really look light at all, these sturdy baseball toilers of Everett high. They're rapidly becoming a smooth machine under Denny Gildea.

White Sox Open Western Parade At Fenway Today

HARRIS BREEZES TO WIN

Mickie Harris breezed through to a 11 to 3 win over the A's yesterday. The Red Sox gave him a two run lead to work on in the first inning and cinched the game by pushing over five more tallies in the fourth. With a seven run lead, Mickie eased up and Al Rubeling slashed one of his serves into the left field stands in the fifth and then the Athletics scored twice in the final frame.

The Athletics, who have taken two out of five games from the Red Sox, were never dangerous with Mickie Harris on the mound. The Long Island southpaw didn't allow more than two hits in any one inning and turned back six A's via the strikeout route.

On the other hand, George Caster, Bucky Ross and Lester McCrabb were all cousins to the Red Sox, who connected with no less than 19 hits for a total of 28 bases.

FOXX TOP BATTER

Williams and Lou Finney were the hitting stars. The Kid came up with two three baggers and a pair of singles, while Lou made three singles and a two bagger. Doc Cramer, with three or four; Jimmy Foxx, who got a single and a double in three official trips to the plate; Jim Tabor, with a home run and a single and Mickie Harris, who came up with two hits, all fattened their batting averages.

Jimmy Foxx is the leading slugger with .455 and Doc Cramer is the runner up with an even .400. Lou Finney is the only other hitter among the Red Sox regulars, for he had made 11 hits in 33 times at bat for .333. However, Teddy Williams is on his way to the elite class, for he's now batting for .282 and is right on the heels of Bobby Doerr.

OUTLOOK BLEAK FOR GODOY

Louis Always Licks Man 2d Time Out

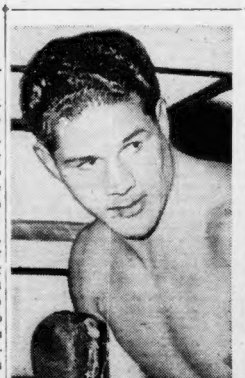
NEW YORK, April 30 (INS)—On a scouting trip through New York's cauliflower patches today, we encountered three strange looking men who insisted that Arturo Godoy has a chance to win the heavyweight championship from Joe Louis here on June 20.

In the order of their importance, they are (1) a publicity man for the Twentieth Century Sporting Club; (2) a publicity man for Al Weill, who handles Godoy, and (3) a chronic underdog picker, who goes around after one of his choices inadvertently wins and reminds everybody that "I told you so" in the first place.

GODOY HAD COLD

Our No. 3 man belongs to that school of alleged thought which strings along with the notion that Louis is slipping, and, moreover, points out that Louis won from Godoy in their February match by a margin of only two votes to one.

The minority ballot was cast by Judge Tommy Shortell, a veteran pugilistic notable and official, who explained that in his opinion Godoy did all the fighting.



ARTURO GODOY

Getting back to the No. 1 and No. 2 gentlemen, we offer their testimony—for whatever it may be worth—vis. and to wit:

Remember Pastor Brown, Schmeling

Godoy was ill with a severe cold and sore throat and was running a temperature less than a week before he met Louis in their previous clash.

The Twentieth Century Sporting Club had kept the malady a secret until a local newspaperman stumbled on the story and printed it.

BACK TO BED

So when the story of Godoy's illness broke, Twentieth Century went into a lather and promptly arranged to have newspapermen watch his work out. For this, he got up out of bed, went through the routine, then back to bed after they had left.

Everything worked out all right, except that in the 13th round Godoy tired for the first time in his life, according to his conversation in the corner.

We'd like to add this reminder: That Natie Brown and Bob Pastor went the limit with Louis in first meetings and Max Schmeling knocked him out.

In return matches they were belted out. In fact, Schmeling was belted right into a hospital.

Refuse License To New Dighton Track Officials

The Massachusetts Racing Commission refused a dog racing license to the recently reorganized Bristol County Kennel Club on the ground it was "not satisfied with the present ownership of the track."

Edward L. Casey, former Harvard football star, was named president of the reorganized club recently after the commission had denied a license to the former organization, which has conducted several racing meetings at the Dighton track.

Casey's organization had petitioned for a license to conduct a dog racing meeting from May 29 to September 10.
